Running Risks

Despite the prevalence of robbery, a few continue to keep money about their homes. In thus doing, they are not only risking the loss of money, but also their lives. How much safer and better it would be if these people were to bring their money to the bank. Are you running such risks?

FATHER AND SON ARE INJURED IN BLAZE

Fire in Closet Extinguished with Chemicals by Firemen

D. F. Stansberry, 134 Kensington-pl suffered the loss of a portion of his hair and received minor burns to his face and hands and his six-year-old son received minor burns to his right hand in a fire which did $55 damage at the Stansberry home shortly after 8 o'clock last night.

The fire started in a closet, when the six-year-old son struck a match in an effort to find a garment. Hearing the child's cries, Mr. Stansberry ran to the closet and in an effort to beat out the flames suffered the loss of his hair and received minor burns to his face and hands. Other members of the family called the fire department and the blaze was extinguished with chemicals by firemen from the central station after it had burned a hole in the wall and partially destroyed the contents of the closet.

Two cars were damaged and the passengers shaken up late Saturday night when a Chevrolet sedan being driven by Leland Anson and a Whippet sedan being driven by Gerald Jennings, collided on N. Main-st.

The accident occurred when Anson, who was going north, attempted to pass another machine and collided with the Jennings car which was going south. The police were called but no arrests made. The drivers of both cars arranged a settlement.

Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

WHAT IS DEATH?

DOES IT END ALL?

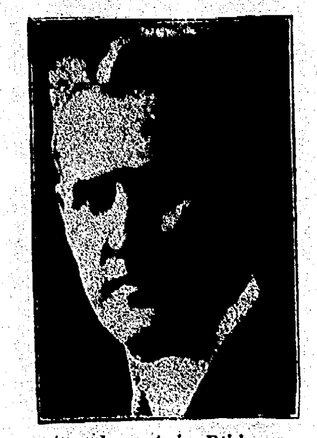
Twenty thousand millions of human beings have already passed into death. Are they really dead, or alive in some other sphere interested in matters so far remote from earthly things that they have forgotten us?

Is there life beyond the grave?

Are the dead in conscious suffering or in bliss?

Will the dead be resurrected?

These and other such questions will be satisfactorily answered in this lecture. The mysteries of death will be unraveled from a Scriptural and scientific point of view, and some startling facts concerning the resurrection of the dead will be advanced.



A student of the Bible, an observer who has traveled and lectured in many countries, Mr. Macmillan brings a message worthy of thoughtful consideration.

Has it not many times occurred to you that there must be some reasonable explanation of the cause of world-wide unrest, distress and perplexities? Where is the rational human being who has not often wished that things were different—who does not long for peace, happiness, freedom from pain and sorrow?

The divine plan for man's release from all causes of unhappiness is not only reasonable but genuinely heart-cheering.

BY L. T. MARSHALL
(Author of the Marshall Bill)

"Certain elements who are waging an unrelenting attack against the enactment of the Marshall Justice of the Peace bill, have continually struck at the constitutionality of the act, yet none has yet proved that the bill is not constitutional.

"The crowd opposed to the bill has attempted to make it an out-and-out wet and dry issue.

"I know for a fact that five of the persons who circulated petitions against the bill for Senator George H. Bender in Cuyahoga county were convicted bootleggers.

"These gangs who are leading the campaign against the bill would rather see the state running riot with lawlessness, than have a law, and a constitutional one, which might possibly have an effect on the bootlegging industry.

"Under the Marshall law, a justice of the peace has absolutely no pecuniary interest in the outcome of a case. Because of this the law is constitutional, and will stand even should its constitutionality be brought before the supreme court, which gave the Tumey decision for a determination.

"While a constable must make so many arrests, and a justice must hear so many cases before they can get their maximum in fees, it does not mean or prove that either has an interest in whether the man is convicted or acquitted.

"The Marshall law is a just one, and fought only by those interested in industries which might be affected by it.

"Had the Marshall bill come up for referendum vote six weeks ago, we would surely have been defeated, but since then we have made strongholds in numerous of the smaller communities where we expect a heavy vote in favor of the bill."

PLANS TO CONTROL FLOODS CONSIDERED

House Committee Starts Hearings; 2,000 Delegates in Capital

Washington, Nov. 7—Consideration of measures to control the nation's raging rivers at flood-tide—one of the costliest jobs ever laid on the doorstep of congress—was begun by the house flood control committee today. Brushing aside its admitted lack of authority and refusing to wait until congress meets to give it legal existence the house committee of the last session started its public hearings with determination to lay a plan before the parent body by Christmas.

With a dozen different plans already proposed to end future Mississippi River disasters, Rep. Frank P. Reid, Republican, of Illinois, chairman of the committee, declared that the ultimate cost may be anywhere from $250,000,000 to $1,000,000,000.

2,000 in Capital

Delegates from every section of the vast Mississippi valley—more than 2,000 in all—poured into the capital on special trains to tell the story of the great flood of last spring and to demand that the nation act.

The Chicago Flood Control Conference was given the right-of-way at the beginning of the hearings today, with Mayor Thompson, chairman, leading the conference's corp of engineers, financiers and mere citizens to seek action and propose remedies. The conference established elaborate headquarters in a hotel and repared to camp until a flood control bill is finally signed by President Coolidge.

Despite the widspread discussion of the Mississippi disaster, there was every evidence as the committee met that flood control would precipitate many stormy sessions of both senate and house.

The faction which is advocating a complete nationwide policy to be undertaken by the federal government without state aid—reversing a policy which has endured for 150 years—already has been accused of urging a "pork barrel" plan.

Cite Danger Spots

It has also been proposed that the government fix a limit in its efforts to control the Mississippi, a river which menaces 20,000,000 of people and defies all measures of local control. With this plan arises the question of whether the government should also limit its efforts to control tributaries reaching almost to the Canadian border.

The New England floods of rare force have focused attention upon scores of "danger spots" throughout the nation. Periodically, the Illinois, the Ohio, the Tennessee, the Sacramento and other rivers have destroyed millions of dollars worth of property and taken hundreds of lives. The story of the great Dayton floods is expected to be retold to the committee.

The report of the army engineers will not be presented until Dec. 1. It is expected to contain flood control proposals which bear the stamp of approval of President Coolidge, Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Secretary of War Davis.

IF YOUR STOMACH TORMENTS YOU

Do this for Quick Relief

A great deal of digestive suffering is due to excess stomach acid which causes heartburn, flatulence, stomach pain and other distressing symptoms. By taking "Pape's Diapepsin" after eating or when pain is felt you not only remove the cause of the trouble and instantly neutralize the harmful acid, but your digestive organs are soothed, healed and strengthened in a wonderful way, and normal healthy digestion results.

Because it is so quick, so safe and so sure in ending digestive troubles, millions recommend "Pape's Diapepsin." "Pape's Diapepsin" is unequalled as an indigestion remedy and food corrective, yet it costs only 60 cents a package at all druggists.

If your stomach ever torments you get "Pape's Diapepsin" at once and recapture the pleasure of care-free, painless digestion.—Adv.

Rebuilding a country nearly half the size of England!

—your RED CROSS is doing it along the Mississippi

THE fiscal year ending June 30, 1927 was the greatest year of disaster ever experienced in this country. Flood and tornado, fire and hurricane followed one another with clock-like regularity. In all, the Red Cross administered relief following 75 catastrophes.

Overshadowing them all was the flood of the mighty Mississippi. When the Father of Waters left its shores to rush into adjoining counties and parishes, more than 3,600,000 cultivated acres were laid waste—an acreage equal to the combined cultivated acreage of New England, excluding Vermont.

The flood, extending nearly a thousand miles from Cairo, Illinois, to the Gulf, inundated 20,000 square miles in the seven states of Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky, Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Louisiana. The area of land under water was nearly half the size of England.

And through it all, Red Cross relief rose to its greatest heights. 136 refugee camps provided shelter, food, clothing and medical aid for 350,000 homeless persons—a figure slightly less than the entire population of Kansas City or Indianapolis. 200,000 head of live stock were saved, and sheltered, and fed, and later returned to their owners. The Red Cross rescue fleet, which saved nearly 200,000 lives, numbered almost a thousand large river boats and many thousands of smaller craft. For the first time in the history of the organization aviation and radio played tremendous roles.

Since June the Red Cross reconstruction program has been in full force. In the three states of Mississippi, Arkansas and Louisiana, 7,668 houses must be rebuilt, thousands of others repaired.

EAGLES' CHARITY FAIR CONSIDERED SUCCESS

Proceeds Will Not Reach Total of Last Year, Secretary Announces

The annual indoor charity fair conducted by Buckeye Aerie No. 337, Fraternal Order of Eagles at the Eagles' building on W. Center-st last week came to a close Saturday night with one of the largest crowds of the week in attendance.

The fair, held for the purpose of raising funds to finance the Eagles' charity and relief work among the city's poor during the next year, was a success in every respect, although the net profits will total considerably less than the record of last year's event, John Abel, secretary of the lodge, stated today.

Definite figures showing results of last week's fair will be submitted to the lodge at a meeting in the near future. A quantity of merchandise not sold during the fair will be disposed of and the proceeds added to the relief fund.

Proceeds from last year's fair amounted to approximately $3,500 and all of the money was expended in charity work. Should the fund raised this year not be sufficient to finance the relief program outlined for the coming year, the difference will be paid from the lodge treasury, Secretary Abel said today.

The Eagles' charity work covers the entire city and vicinity and is in charge of special committees appointed to co-operate with the various local welfare agences. Food, clothing, fuel and other supplies are distributed to poor families mostly during the winter months.

A special distribution of gifts at Christmas time is a feature of the program.

Mrs. Sarah Corbin, 63, former Marion resident, died at midnight last night at her home, 481 W. Rich-st, in Columbus, according to word received in relatives here today. Death was due to cancer.

Funeral services are to be held from the home Wednesday afternoon followed by burial in Columbus.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Nina Wirth and Mrs. Leslie Olney of Columbus, three sons, James, Henry and Elliot Corbin, the former of Cincinnati and the others of Columbus, two sisters, Mrs. Mathilda Gosnell of Richwood and Mrs. Hannah Osborne, of Winfield, and four brothers, M. J. and Albert Redman, Park-blvd, and David and James Redman of Prospect. Her husband, Lou Corbin, and a child preceded her in death. She was born in Marion County.

basis for forecasting the vote Tuesday, the total will be far below the usual average for local elections. Last year, the records show, absent voters ballots totalled 290. Text was a general state and county election, however, and can hardly be taken as a fair basis of comparison, election officials say.

Center of Interest

Public interest appears to center chiefly on the referendum vote to be taken on the Marshall bill, according to the general trend of election discussions today. Opinion on whether the bill will be approved by voters of the state and whether it will carry in Marion county seemed to be about evenly divided.

Candidates for local city offices, from Mayor Hazen and his democratic opponent, William H. Hoberman, down the list, conducted unusually quiet campaigns, which probably accounts in a large measure for the public's failure to display interest in the contests.

ROBERT EUGENE MASON IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Funeral services for Robert Eugene Mason, five-weeks-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Mason who who died of stomach trouble at 5:10 o'clock Sunday night at the home of his aunt, Mrs. R. Grant, 651 Mary-st, will be held there at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon with Rev. W. H. Whitehead, pastor of the Toledo Avenue Mission, in charge. Burial will be in Marion Cemetery. The baby was born in this city Sept. 30 and was the only child of Francis and Ethel Marshall Mason.

COAL MINE OPERATING ON CO-OPERATIVE BASIS

Columbus, O., Nov. 7—Adj. Gen. Frank D. Henderson this afternoon was informed of the opening today of a mine at Bannock, Belmont County, on a cooperative basis. Henderson was told that 34 striking union miners went to work at the mine. Although a crowd of strikers and sympathizers gathered about the mine, there was no demonstration, it was stated.

NINE OUT OF TEN KILL THEMSELVES

Doctors say universal habits of intestinal uncleanness cause disease

By refusal to correct civilization's effect on the bowel-habits of the race, nine out of ten people deliberately shorten their lives, say scientists today.

Primitive man evacuated his bowels every six hours—and consequently knew nothing of the intestinal poisoning to which modern human beings are subject through retention of decaying fecal matter in the lower bowel.

In an astounding booklet, "Civilization's Greatest Menace," offered in support of fifty world-leading doctors, shows that auto-intoxication is a cause of practically every known ill, from dizziness to cancer.

Hunt's Internal Bath ends auto-intoxication and constipation by keeping the lower bowel washed clean. Without obligation, ask to see our complete display of Hunt's Internal Baths. A copy of the booklet may be had for the asking.

White Men Penetrate Stronghold of Devil Worshippers in Persian Hills

Upper left—Characteristic close-up of Yezide devil adorer. Upper right—The sheik emir (arrow) as he receives police chief. General view of Beled Sindjar, fortified village of Satanic cult.

WORSHIPPERS of the devil!

Sounds like fiction, but it's cold, hard fact.

There's a whole tribe of 'em in Beled Sindjar, a famous settlement of the Yezides, on the way from Moussoul to Aleppo, in Persia. Here more than 800 families of the Yezides live in a fortified city in the mountains that would be a tough nut to crack for an army.

The Yezides are workmen or farmers. They fear and worship nothing but the devil; but a peculiarity of their religion is that any one mentioning the Satanic name is condemned to immediate death.

Until recently it was extremely dangerous for a white man to go near the city, but at last the Yezides permitted the entrance of strangers.

The chief of this tribe is known as the sheik emir. He possesses the sacred brass peacock, which he displays to members of his cult for a small fee, and the present incumbent is said to have collected more than $25,000 in this manner.

The devil adorers are distinguished by their dress, coiffure and sly, bold countenances. The coiffure consists of from seven to nine thin braids falling from the cap, which is similar to the shawl hat of the Persians.

tions until roads have been patched up and new supplies arrive only half a loaf of bread a day is allowed for each person.

A summary of the flood toll in New England shows:

Vermont—More than half the state flood swept, at least 125 dead, 50,000 homeless, with freshets subsiding and work out rebuilding begun.

Massachusetts—Untold millions in property damage, one town completely wiped out, 10,000 homeless as crest of Connecticut River flood passes through Springfield.

Connecticut—Already battered to damage of millions in first onslaughts of freshets, menaced by crest of flood rushing down Connecticut River.

Towns Buried

New Hampshire—Towns buried beneath water landslides and northern part of state still menaced by freshets.

Rhode Island—Almost back to normal as Blackstone and other rivers subside after causing great damage.

Maine—Swept by gales as well as floods, nearly back to normal.

All of the western and northern part of New England is still crippled in lines of communication. Patchwork telegraph and telephone service is barely able to handle official messages. Rail damage will reach $25,000,000 and in many instances will not be restored for weeks, while it will never be restored in other districts. At least another $15,000,000 damage has been done to highways.

An air line, with a base at Concord, N. H., has been established to rush sugar, yeast and salt, the most urgently needed supplies, to stricken towns.

Dead Listed

The first plane made its way to Montpelier, center of the worst wrecked area yesterday, piloted by an army flier, Governor Weeks sent out word to the army base that Vermont believed it can drag itself back to normalcy without outside help except for labor.

Barre, Waterbury, Bolton, Richmond and other towns on the Winooski River, which runs from near Montpelier to Lake Champlain received the most savagely killing sweep of the torrents.

Barre has 26 known dead, Waterbury 25, Bolton 17 and Richmond 10, while state highway report places the Bolton dead at 36. It is reported a logging camp bunkhouse with 18 men swept into the freshet.

On Train 60 Hours

Many smaller towns and villages have not been heard from.

Army fliers, newspapermen and sightseers flying over the districts still inundated reported the inhabitants at work clearing away wreckage and attempting to establish communications. Lieutenant Cobb, flying back to Concord from Montpelier reported that between Randolph and Bethel a great lake miles in extent, had been formed by the flood and that he observed a train stalled in the middle of it. Flying low he saw scores of men, women and children, lying on the coach seats. They had been there at least 60 hours without food or heat and word was sent to Maj. Gen. Preston Brown, commanding troops in the district, to send relief.

FIFTH STOLEN CAR RECOVERED, REPORT

Sedan of R. E. Adams Found on Carner-av; Machine Not Damaged

With the finding of the Oakland sedan, property of R. E. Adams, on Carner-av late Saturday afternoon, the last of the five cars taken by joyriders Friday night has been recovered. That the machine had been abandoned on the street just a short time before its discovery is the belief of Chief of Police Thompson, who said he had traveled the street earlier in the afternoon seeking the stolen machine. The car was not damaged.

Four of the five cars, a Buick sedan belonging to Chester Roberts, Mt. Vernon-av; a Buick coach, property of Earl Reasoner, a car belonging to A. E. Russell, Edwards-st and a Hudson touring car belonging to Ben Blake, florist, were found Saturday morning in various parts of the city. None had been damaged although all had been driven a great distance.

FALL EXPERIENCES UNFAVORABLE NIGHT

Washington, Nov. 7—Albert B. Fall, Ex-secretary of the Interior, who collapsed following the mistrial in the Teapot Dome conspiracy case, experienced an unfavorable night and was worse this morning, according to his physician.

Beat eggs slightly, add to first mixture, add fat melted in scalded milk, salt and raisins. Stir in flour one cup at a time until five cups are used. Mix well and let stand until double its bulk. Stir down and pour into oiled pans, filling about one-third full. One tablespoon butter, one-half cup sugar, one tablespoon cinnamon. Melt butter in small pan, add sugar and cinnamon. Mix well and sprinkle over tops of loaves. Let them stand in a warm place until pans are two-thirds full, then bake in even 350 degrees for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 300 degrees for forty or forty-five minutes. The amount of sugar may be decreased to suit your taste.

advising Assistant District Attorney Neil Burkinshaw, that he would bring all of the operatives who had covered the Fall-Sinclair jurors to Washington without their being subpenaed. He further offered to place all books and records of the Burns agency at the grand jury's disposal and he challenged the closest scrutiny of them.

"We have nothing to hide," he said. "The public has been led to believe that we had no right to do what we did, but we were absolutely within our rights in observing the activities of the jurors so long as we did not approach them. The defense has the same privilege in that respect as the prosecution.

"Not a single Burns man approached a juror or spoke to him, or communicated with him in any way. If there is any evidence any of our operatives did so, we will gladly assist in sending him to the penitentiary.

Former Operative Held

"Our agents were honest and sincere."

Waiting in another room, was Douglas S. Catchim, former assistant manager of the local Burns office. Catchim, in the uniform of a private of the United States Marine Corps, had been snatched back from Newport News almost on the eve of his sailing for Haiti. The district attorney's office had acted on an anonymous telephone call that Catchim had boasted he "would be fixed for life," if he got out of the country and stayed out. A marine sergeant kept a watchful eye on him as he waited to be brought before the grand jury.

W. Sherman Burns, son of William J., who also appeared before the grand jury this morning admitted for the first time that his agency had been engaged to keep the Fall-Sinclair jury under surveillance by H. Mason Day, vice president of the Sinclair Exploration Co. The contract was made on Oct. 19, the day the jury was sworn and it was ascertained they would not be locked up.

"Nothing Improper Done"

"Mr. Day told us that inasmuch as the jury was not to be locked up he wanted them placed under surveillance—for their own protection naturally," said young Burns. "Day appreciated as well as anybody else the wide interest in the case, the politics involved and the ambitions for a conviction and he felt that the defense had the same right to protect itself as the government.

"Nothing was done in this case by any of our men which was at all improper and most certainly we violated no law."

GREECE, disturbed by assorted Bolshevism, Communism, Radicalism and Heaven knows what, requests our government to tell the Greek government how we "control the reds."

Ours is a simple method, named PROSPERITY.

Give men worth with godo wages and they are content. That is their nature. Give them insufficient work or underpaid work, and you will have the demonstration called "red."

If prosperity were destroyed, the red color would spread here as quickly as anywhere else.

ORCHID raising is intricate, interesting work, with its cultivation of strange hybrids and trading in seedlings and orchid spikes.

COUNT CZERNIN, who was Austrian minister of foreign affairs in the war, thinks England, France and Germany will unite in the near future to wipe out Russian bolshevism. That would be a considerable job. Russia, occupying one-sixth the surface of the globe, might be temporarily conquered, but wouldn't stay conquered. Besides, the young gentlemen of England, France and Germany are not anxious to go out and be shot all over again.

THE latest plan "to help the farmer" is a farmers' union that would ascertain the cost of products and fix prices that the people must pay. You can do this for railroads, but can you do it for farmers? Suppose one year you raise more potatoes than the people will eat, and next year potatoes are scarce. How will you regulate prices then?

AMAZING INVENTION

Opens Pathway to Health and Happiness

Have You Heard of Its Wonderful Cures?

Literally Thousands of People Throng the Sykodoner Offices Daily, to See It Demonstrated.

TREATMENT FREE

The Sykodoner, an invention based on a most marvelous discovery, is now in Marion. Crowds of chronic sufferers see and admire its mystifying phenomena. The cures it has effected—some of them instantaneously—are nothing short of amazing. The crippled have cast away their crutches. The dumb have been made to speak, the deaf to hear. Goiters have vanished. Chronic constipation has been overcome, insomnia has given away to dreamless sleep. Diabetes has yielded. Cancer and tuberculosis have been forced to give ground. In literally thousands of instances, this discovery has brought health to the hopeless.

Naturally all this seems beyond belief; but the radio, sending winged messages around the world, the airplane carrying Lindbergh across the treacherous sea, would have been beyond belief a short time ago. When one understands the scientific principle underlying the Sykodoner, however, he realizes that the alleged cures are not only possible, but natural, logical and inevitable. He realizes that they must follow just as certainly as 2 and 2 make for.

The late George Sterling, California's well-known poet, wrote in part: "I am almost afraid to relate what I myself have seen and been told, by patients, of the cures effected. Suffice to state, most sincerely, that those affirmations of cured folk include permanent relief from dozens of the most painful ills to which humanity is subjected. I have seen severe and chronic neuritis healed in a week's treatment, and equally painful case of arthritis, in the hands of a musician, cured in a single treatment. I have seen, or been told of, white hair turned again to their natural color, of the sudden and undeniable cure of indigestion, diabetes, goitre, anemia, varicose veins, gall stones, asthma, even of cancer."

So you see there is nothing mysterious about it all. It is a simple, natural, scientific treatment—a treatment the efficacy of which has been established by clinical results. It involves no dieting, no baths, no drugs, no serum, no surgery, no manipulations, not even faith. All you need to do is to use the Sykodoner—you do not even remove the clothing. As the action of the Sykodoner is magnetic—not electric—there is no shock, no disagreeable sensation, no discomfort of any kind. On the contrary, the experience, in fact, is a delight. It is promoted, used, and endorsed by many of the most noted and widely known people of the world. Come, let us tell you about it, all.

DELIGHTFUL FREE TREATMENTS

Visit us and take a delightful, twenty minute treatment. There will be no charges. You will not be obligated in the slightest degree. We simply want your own experience to prove that the Sykodoner actually produces the results claimed for it. We want you to judge it solely by what it does for you.

It must be remembered that the Sykodoner is entirely different from any former, orthodox methods of healing. Because it attacks disease at its source in the tissue cells, results are astonishingly rapid. And it is almost impossible to realize how remarkably efficacious it is unless you actually see or experience these results.

So by all means, make this simple test. No matter what your ailment, investigate this amazing invention which has revealed a short road to health to literally thousands of people. Visit us at once. You have absolutely nothing to lose; everything to gain. [illegible]

What we can't understand in connection with that Western Reserve professor's reference to the silly buffoonery of the Don Quixotes living along the drainage canal is what at this late date he could possibly have against the central figure of Cervantes' keen thrust at knight-errantry.

"The White House," successor to the White House spokesman, makes plain that Mr. Coolidge's "choose" has a little meaning all its own and that there will be no "wavering" from the Rapid City use of the word. Fifty-Eight Dolls.

Fifteen hundred little Japanese school girls participated in a formal farewell at Tokio, one day last week, to fifty-eight Japanese dolls, which will be shipped to San Francisco on the steamship, Tenyo Maru, next Thursday.

The children read addresses expressing hopes that the doll gifts to the American school children, presented in appreciation for more than 10,000 dolls which American children gave for the doll festival of Japanese girls, will carry the assurances of Japanese friendship for the United States.

Some may be inclined to feel that this is a rather trifling matter to cable across the Pacific and not worth writing about upon its receipt here. Some may feel that the occasion upon which the story was built was a trifling one, but manifestly neither our ambassador to Japan, Charles MacVeagh, nor Viscount Shibusawa, was of that view, for both spoke at the ceremony.

And both of those dignitaries were right in assuming that the occasion was not trivial. Accumulating the fund with which to buy the fifty-eight dolls was very probably a far greater undertaking for the poor little Japanese girls than was the effort of the little American girls in sending 10,000 dolls to the little girls of Nippon. It was thus that the little daughters of Nippon showed their appreciation, as stated. But one of these days the 10,000 little girls who received the dolls from America will be grown up. They will marry, and become the mothers of another generation, and having in mind the act of the little girls of America they will have such a feeling for America as probably they would acquire in no other way, and they will instill that feeling in the hearts of their offspring.

There is nothing like cultivating the friendship of the young. The old have but a short time to linger in the sphere of earthly activities, at the best, but the young are coming on. And cultivating their friendship is not only cultivating the friendship of those who soon are to assume the running of things, but, in cases such as this, it is also cultivating the friendship of those who come after them, for mothers hold a place in the Japanese homes they did not hold even so late as a decade ago. They have taken up western ideas and western ways, and are no longer content to be the nonentities in home life they once were.

No, the sending of the fifty-eight Japanese dolls to America will be testimony to the fact that the 10,000 American dolls sent to Japan were 10,000 agents for the building up of friendship and good will in the future of the two nations.

Three Tales of the Sea.

The Pacific always has and probably always will offer us her full share of queer tales and mysteries, and of late she has been far more productive of them than ordinarily.

It was less than a month ago that the finding along the San Francisco-China route of an abandoned submarine of a pre-war model was reported. Something like two weeks ago a vessel brought into port an eighty-foot power boat with the solidly-frozen bodies of two men at her wheel and the bodies of a number of others strewn about her decks bearing evidence that her crew had resorted to cannibalism. A writing found aboard showed that it was a Japanese fishing boat which had left its home port last December with sixty bushels of rice and some other foodstuffs aboard, and sailed far up into the North Pacific. There something happened to her to make her machinery useless. Our recollection is that it was the loss of her propeller. In any event, she drifted about helplessly in the awful cold. Foodstuffs were exhausted in time and then the crew began living off itself, till only the two found frozen at the wheel were left.

And now from Victoria comes a tale of mystery, which must set all of us guessing. A wire from that city last Saturday told us that the hull of a 200-foot vessel, bearing the name, Revoll or Reveille, had drifted into the Strait of Juan de Fuca from the Pacific, and had been taken in tow and tied up at Sooke Harbor, near there.

"Mariners," the story went on to say, "are puzzled as to the history of the derelict, which seems to have been a fine vessel of some 3,000 tons. Some ten or twelve years ago, they recall, a ship with a similar name was reported to have burned at sea in Pacific coast waters while on a voyage out of New York, but whether the hull tied up at Sooke Harbor is of the same vessel has not been ascertained.

"Lloyds' register for 1902-3 lists a vessel under the name of Revell, whose specifications correspond roughly with the ship which drifted into the strait. The hull has been taken in charge by the Dominion department of marines and fisheries."

Well, what's the answer? Has this hull been submerged in comparatively shallow water all these years and in some way sent to the surface by one of the recent earthquakes felt in North Pacific waters? If so, why didn't it sink again? Discarding the possibility that the hull was submerged and brought to the surface by some force of nature, and assuming that it has been afloat on or fifteen years, where has it been? Why has it never been sighted? How could it possibly escape observation as it neared the coast in drifting into the Strait of Juan Fuca?

Assuming that it has been afloat, as is very probable, what better idea can be given of the vastness of the Pacific; what better illustration of its awful loneliness? Here we have a hull 200 feet in length floating about for ten or twelve years, possibly even longer, and yet in all that time it has never been reported as having been sighted!

The three stories coming within a month bring home to us how little is the chance of rescue when serious mishap occurs at sea off the courses customarily followed by vessels.

The latest fire out in California broke windows, shook down chimneys and wrecked railroad lines along the coast, but it could hardly be called a general conflagration.

The operation of her steamship line having caused a loss of almost $1,000,000 in seven months, Australia has decided to dispose of it to private interests. Judging by our experience up here, holding her steamships for sale may prove more costly than operating them.

The attempt of United States coast guard vessels to blockade the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon off the Newfoundland coast, doesn't strike us as the most diplomatic way imaginable of going about the retaining of pleasant relations between this country and France.

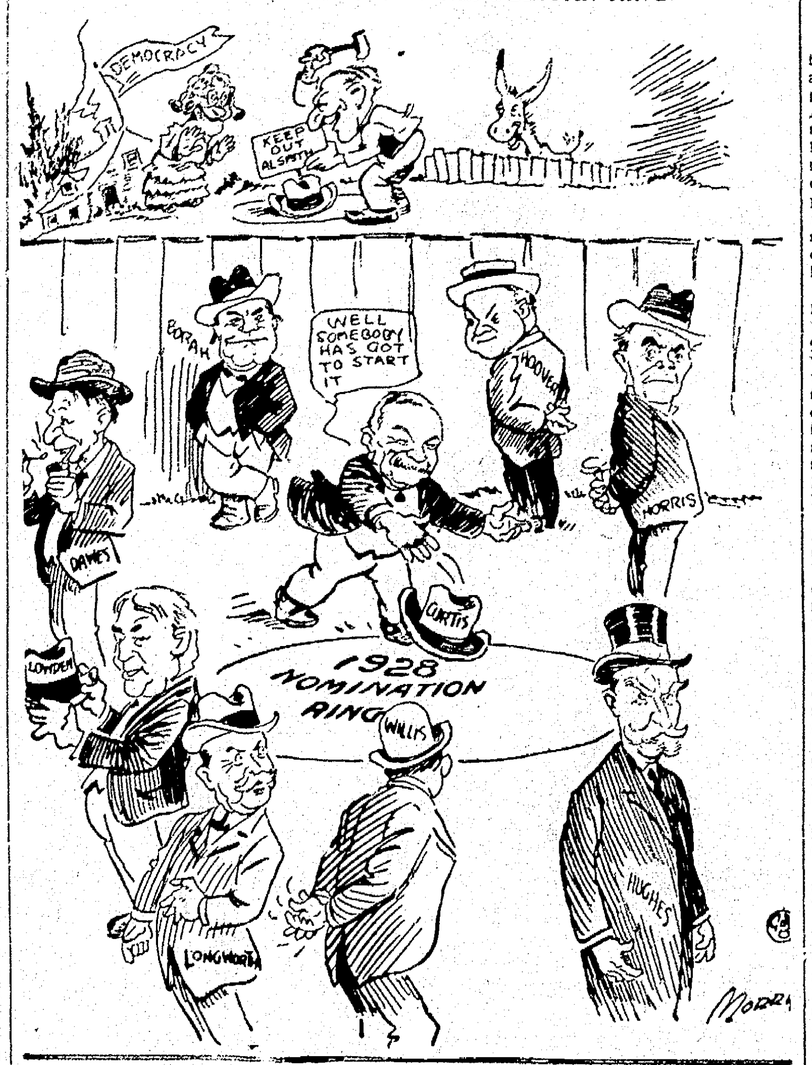
THE FIRST HAT IN THE REPUBLICAN RING.



Sure To Show One Symptom.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Babies have their sad times just as we do. There come along disagreeable events to disturb their happiness. With their tender tissues and delicate organs it is a wonder they do not suffer more than they actually do.

One of the common disturbances of babyhood is an upset stomach. Vomiting is not at all unusual. Trifling causes may produce it. Even a wrong position of the baby, jiggling it, or annoying it, may cause vomiting.

Of all the causes for vomiting overfeeding is the chief. Crowding the stomach with unnecessary food is likely to bring on the trouble. Overfilling the tender stomach must be regarded as the wrong practice.

The vomiting may occur right after nursing, within a few minutes. Pressure over the stomach or sudden movements of the child may excite it.

Too rapid feeding is another reason for vomiting. In its eagerness to get food from the breast or bottle, it sucks in and swallows a lot of air. This crowds the stomach and helps to disturb it.

You can see that in many cases there is no real disease. The trouble is largely mechanical. But, of course, there are other instances by the million where the stomach tissues are inflamed and, of course, vomiting is to be expected.

Where there is congestion or inflammation of the stomach, the vomited material is not apt to be clear milk. There will be mucus, or blood, or bile in the expelled substance.

In a grown person, a chill may be the first sign of the onset of a fever of some sort. In a child, a convulsion or severe vomiting may be the first symptom.

There are babies who appear to have the vomiting habit. After almost every feeding there may be a return of some or all of the milk. It does not shoot out of the mouth but simply flows back.

As you would expect, babies of this sort are sure to suffer. The vomiting deprives it of needed nourishment. It is an unfortunate habit for any youngster to form.

Almost the only thing to do for such infants is to take them off the breast and feed them on thick food. For this purpose, barley flour may be cooked in milk. Gelatin of the right sort is helpful, too.

Usually, vomiting comes from getting tainted food. It is absolutely necessary to get pure milk and prepare it with exact care. The greatest watchfulness is essential to the baby's safety.

In serious and continued vomiting or diarrhoea, to stop all food for a day is good practice. To give nothing but cooled water which has been boiled will help a lot.

Where repeated attacks of vomiting occur, you must talk with your doctor. He will help to find what is wrong. The sort of food, the way the food is prepared and the quantity given are all of vital importance.

The way the child is cared for and handled is another thing to study.

You will find the cause of the vomiting. Then with its removal everything will be all right.

Editorial Comment.

HE WROTE THE STORY.

In 1898 John Luther Long, Philadelphia lawyer and a writer of respectable repute, but of no eminence, published a pathetic little story which he called "Madame Butterfly." It achieved no outstanding success and stirred no general comment. It was, indeed, of no importance. Merely a neatly written short story, with plenty of "weeps" in it.

David Belasco took this unnoticed short story, engaged its author to dramatize it, and by the magic of his superlative stagecraft made it into a rather interesting play. It was not nearly as good as subsequent plays which Long himself wrote directly for Belasco. "The Darling of the Gods" was, in its way, a melodramatic triumph, and it was Long's masterpiece. Blanche Bates and George Arliss are still remembered as stars of this thrilling Japanese romance, but of the play called "Madame Butterfly" practically nothing is remembered.

There are several stories of Puccini's discovery of "Madame Butterfly." Perhaps the correct one will never be told. But it is known that Puccini took this undistinguished drama, which was built up from a seemingly commonplace short story and transformed it into one of the greatest of modern grand operas. In America and in Europe no masterpiece is more admired by musical adepts and by the commonalty.

The death of John Luther Long at Philadelphia occurred this week. It was scarcely more than noted. For Long, whose fame was never very luminous, had written little in recent years. Yet there must have been a germ of genius in this man from whose brain issued the story which made the play which made the opera. And let it be remembered, too, that when Puccini sought to repeat and made another opera out of another Belasco melodrama, "The Girl of the Golden West," the result was dangerously near a "flop." Long surely did something worth doing, and he deserves to be remembered by lovers of dramatic music.—Cleveland Plain Dealer, November 4.

THE TIPPING EVIL.

Labor unions are portrayed as being heartily in favor of the abolition of the practice of "tipping," as the giving of largess for individual service is widely called. Certainly the practice has much against it and little for it, but that little is deep seated in human nature. It is probably true that nine out of ten men "tip" not because they want to, but because they believe that they have to. It is the common belief among guests at hotels, restaurants and in other places where "tipping" is the custom that the individual will receive poor service if he fails to dispense liberally. The question is not whether one shall tip, but how much? The standard answer for the service of a meal is ten per cent. of the check, and this is to be hid carelessly beneath a napkin or left at the side of the plate.

No doubt fully fifty per cent. of the "tipping evil" may be laid at the door of the timid traveler, who does not dare to expect and demand what he has paid for unless he puts himself in the position of employer as well as guest and pay the man for a service he already is more or less paid for. The fact that he may not be adequately paid is no concern of the outsider unless his business be specific investigations of just that character.

On the side of the tip taker it may be said that there are certain human natures, among both rich and poor, which are not satisfied to do their work without extra reward, but must demand some compensation on the side. Many persons are never so happy as when getting something for nothing, or when they think they are getting something for nothing.

It is extremely difficult, therefore, to foresee a future in which there will be no such thing as "tipping," unless a universal movement is put on foot by employers of such labor to stop the custom. Certainly a "tipless" land would more nearly approach the America of dreams and ideals than the present country of forced "tips" and graceless receiving.—Washington Star.

Vagrant Verse.

THE MILITARY USHER.

When but a wrapped-in-cotton tot
Who yelled like any Hottentot
The rum-tum-tum of martial drum beguiled his baby ears;
"Some day," thought he, "I'm going to be
A captain in the cavalry
Or see myself a major in the fighting fusileers."

In gold-trimmed cape and gleaming boots
He executes his brisk salutes,
He clicks his heels, he turns and wheels, advances and retreats;
With other young Napoleons
Who usher for simoleons
He checks the charging standees in the nightly war for seats.

The nation well might point with pride
To all these ushers glorified,
For should the drums of war resound around the world again,
And should we have to join the fight,
The movie shows could overnight
Produce a skilled and super-drilled array of marching men!

Mercury's Transit.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

On the tenth of this month—November—there will be a transit of the planet, Mercury, across the face of the sun. Although the phenomenon will not be visible from the American continents, it is a subject of interest to all the world, for, among other things, it has an important connection with the Einstein theory, since a certain irregularity in its orbital motion is alleged to accord with the postulates of that theory. When the planet is seen projected as a black dot against the sun, an evident opportunity is given to ascertain its exact place, and so measure any irregularity in its motion.

It has long been known that the perihelion point in the orbit of Mercury, i. e., the point where it approaches nearest to the sun on each round, is very slowly advancing. This advance can be measured by observations made when the planet is in transit. The important thing is to determine the exact rate and other circumstances of the advance. Einstein claims that these accord with the requirements of his theory, and not with that of Newton. But this claim is disputed by some astronomers. Possibly some light upon the question will be derived from the coming transit.

The transit will be visible in part from the Pacific ocean, particularly from Hawaii, and the whole transit from Australia.

Mercury, when in transit, appears as a black dot on the sun, too small to be visible to the naked eye. Yet its actual diameter exceeds 3,000 miles. Its distance from the earth at the time of the transit is about 62,600,000 miles, and from the sun about 29,400,000 miles. Thus, although it appears like a patch on the sun's face, yet it is really suspended in its orbit in space about two-thirds of the way from the earth to the sun. As it travels much faster than the earth, it moves across the sun in the same direction in which the earth travels, at a rate depending upon the difference between the speeds of the two planets.

Mercury has a very eccentric orbit, for while its mean distance from the sun is about 36,000,000 miles, it goes away to a distance of 43,350,000 miles when in aphelion, and approaches to 28,550,000 miles at perihelion. This causes it to experience a temperature two-and-a-quarter times as great at perihelion as at aphelion, and this great change occurs within a period about six weeks. Being so near the sun, the average temperature on Mercury is almost seven times as great as upon the earth. Having a force of gravity at its surface only about a quarter as great as the earth, its atmosphere is very rare, if indeed it has any at all.

In view of these facts it is not surprising that astronomical observations show no signs of life on Mercury, while its surface appears to be as barren as that of the moon.

Another curious fact about Mercury is that it appears to make only one turn on its axis in each revolution around the sun, in consequence of which one of its hemispheres must be perpetually faced to the always rising sun and the other to the never setting stars. The side facing the sun must, then, be baked continually with heat seven times as intense as that received by the earth, where, nevertheless, we are glad to be half the time covered with the cool curtain of night—a relief never vouchsafed to the sunward hemisphere of Mercury. As to the other side of that seemingly unfortunate planet, only adventurers in the polar nights of the earth can give a guess at the terrible degree of frigidity to which it is exposed. Truly, there are worlds and worlds, and not all of them would suit us.—Copyright, 1927.

Giovanni Palestrina—Composer.

BY COZETTE DOUGLAS.

Although Giovanni de Palestrina was essentially a composer of sacred music, the far-reaching effect of his style has had a profound effect upon modern musical culture.

Palestrina was born about the year 1526 in the city from which his name is taken. The various versions of his name make an interesting record, some of them being Pellestrino, Prenestini, Palestrina and Prenestius.

In 1547 he married Lucrezia de Goris, and an exceptional honor was conferred on him when Pope Julius III made Palestrina a singer in the Papal Choir, as these singers were supposed to be celibates. Under Pope Paul IV Palestrina was ruled out, but he was later made musical director at the Lateran.

In 1562 the Council of Arent censured the then prevalent style of ecclesiastical music, and the pope commissioned eight cardinals to investigate. The result of this investigation was that Palestrina submitted three masses for approval. One of the masses fulfilled in the highest possible degree all the conditions demanded, and the mass was publicly sung in the Sistine chapel.

Palestrina was then appointed composer to the Sistine chapel, an office created expressly in his honor.

In 1580 Palestrina was much distressed by the death of his wife and three sons. However, in February, 1581, he married again, his second wife being a rich widow, Virginia Dormulli.

While Palestrina is not noted for any operatic or laic compositions, his sacred music revolutionized the music then and since used for religious purposes.

Palestrina's style of composition persisted until the eighteenth century, only to be replaced by the new art as matured by Bach and Handel.

Palestrina's music is perpetuated in the music of the Roman Catholic church, his "Missa Papae Marcelli" having been sung as recently as 1905 in the Cologne cathedral.

His effect on style and method is indisputable and modern music owes much to this man who has been called the "Homer of Music."

He died in Rome on February 2, 1594, breathing his last in the arms of his friend, Filippo Neri.

Hand-writing experts uncover strange quirks of human perversity. That they retain any respect for humanity is remarkable. One tells me of a woman whose health was being wrecked by slimy insinuations by mail. All her personal movements, which were innocent enough, were interpreted into suspicions of infamy. Servants were discharged, but the letters continued. It developed the letters were written by her husband, to cover up his intrigues with a charmer. He kept his wife in such perpetual turmoil she had no time to keep track of him.

Anonymous letter writers frequently print their missives in block letters, thereby expecting to foil recognition. The hand-writing expert, given their real hand-writing, can identify the block letters at almost a single microscopic glance. It was also stated that almost invariably the anonymous letter writer has a criminal record or criminal tendencies. He is never normal.

I once wrote an anonymous letter to the editor of the Gallipolis, Ohio, Journal, suggesting that the paper for that week had never been so newsy and breezy. That had been my first week as "the" reporter. The next day when I arrived in the office he looked up from his pile of proofs, peered over his glasses, and remarked: "I got your letter." He never mentioned it again—and that cured me of anonymity.

That old story of the excited gentleman calling to the owner of the barking dog: "Call off your dog or I'll knock his head off," has a sequel in another excited gentleman at a theater box office shouting: "If you think you can sit me behind a post I'm a damn fool for $5.85."

Perhaps this places him. He is the type who swashily cleans his teeth with a finger behind a napkin in a restaurant. "New York," he said, ripping a band from an expensive cigar, "is a town of easy marks. All you have to do is to brush up on etiquet and act refined." And that is a true incident.

George White probably has more fun out of the theatrical business than any producer. He loves to sell tickets and is usually in the box office at night. Sometimes he takes in tickets at the door. Other times he leads the orchestra or ushers downstairs or in the balcony. Indeed, he is all over the theater—winding up as an actual performer in a dance number. White is only a few years removed from those happy days when all Broadway knew him as "Swifty, the Messenger Boy." In those hallowed hours he was the nimblest buck-and-winger along the street, and often with a death message marked "Rush" would stop long enough to execute a neat jig for pitched pennies. Only Broadway could produce his like, and that is perhaps why he is one of its most interesting figures.

PROCLAMATION ON ARMISTICE ISSUED

Mayor Hazen Urges Observance of Day Here in Formal Statement

A request that merchants and citizens in general, observe Armistice Day next Friday, by displaying the national colors and by lending assistance where-ever possible, in carrying out the program which is being planned in observance of the day, is contained in a proclamation issued by Mayor Earl Hazen today.

The proclamation follows:

"To the citizens of Marion, Ohio:

"I, Earl M. Hazen, mayor of the city of Marion do hereby ask that all merchants, and all citizens in general, observe next Friday as Armistice Day by displaying the national colors and by lending assistance in carrying out the program which is being planned by members of the American Legion.

"We should do this, not only because it brings to us the opportunity to show, in a small measure, the love and sacred honor in which we hold the 31,000 boys—flower of American manhood—who sleep in graves on foreign soil, and in which we hold the thousands who are suffering a living death, in the hospitals of our land, but because the day represents a triumph of peace, rather than a triumph of war.

"We do not celebrate this day alone. We are one of a brotherhood of nations. And we are not celebrating a victory over any other nation or the winning of the battle over another's army—we are celebrating the great day when peace came and those nations which are celebrating it with us, are bound to us by closer ties of friendship, which may, God grant, ripen into a love which will have as its fruit, universal peace."

Wants His Face Remade So He'll Be "Beautiful"

Louis Wolheim (center lower) insists on having his "map" remodeled because he wants to look as "pretty" as Jack Gilbert (left), and Jack Barrymore (right). But producers won't let him doll up.

HIS face is his fortune.

But he's going to tempt fate by having it made over!

That's the announcement of Louis Wolheim, actor, who has a "mug" that makes children flee in terror at the very sight of it, and makes even strong men tremble.

Wolheim has become tired of his caved-in nose and other facial errors. Every time he shaves he breaks out in a cold sweat. So he started arrangements to have a little editing done on his countenance.

When his managers heard of his desire to be beautified up to a par with Jack Barrymore and Jack Gilbert, they threatened an injunction. At least, the press agent says they did.

Wolheim's an interesting character. His nose was smashed playing football. He was for several years a professor of mathematics at Cornell. Later he went on the stage scoring his greatest success as "Captain Flagg" in "What Price Glory."

OHIO CONFERENCE TEAMS RUN TRUE TO FORM SATURDAY

Wittenberg Leads Ohio Loop and Buckeye A. A. as Well

Columbus, O., Nov. 7—Oberlin defeated Akron, 19 to 14, in the most important Ohio Conference game Saturday, while other conference teams ran true to advance predictions.

Western Reserve showed improvement, but the Pioneers were defeatd by Wooster, 6 to 0. Miami ran up a 54 to 6 score on Ohio Northern, while Mt. Union won a 34 to 12 victory at the expense af Case.

Baldwin-Wallace defeated the weak Hiram team, 19 to 0, and Kenyon beat Marietta, 7 to 0. Muskingum had no trouble beating Heidelberg 33 to 0 and Ohio University took a hard-fought game from Denison, 7 to 0.

Wittenberg continues to top the conference following a non-conference game with Bethany in which the Lutherans nose out ahead, 3 to 0. Wesleyan, St. Xavier and Cincinnati also played outside games.

Wittenberg also heads the Buckeye Athletic association and is virtually certain of a championship or at least a tie for the honors in that circuit.

Toledo practically cinched its claim to the Northwest Ohio conference title by winning from Defiance, 16 to 7, Friday, although Bowling Green still remains a threat.

DISTRICT RALLY

400 Attend Luther League Meeting at Lutheran Church

About 400 young people were in attendance at a Luther League district rally of Lutheran Churches of four counties, yesterday afternoon and last night at Emanuel's Lutheran Church. Meetings are held semi-annually.

BEGINS DUTIES

New Forest Lawn Presbyterian Pastor Takes Over Charge

With a splendid sermon on the subject, "The Cost of An Answered Prayer," Rev. John A. Carriker, of Weirton, W. Va., yesterday morning took up his duties as pastor of Forest Lawn Presbyterian Church.

"Always pray in the name of God, approach Him by way of the Lord Jesus Christ, pleading His righteousness and death on the cross," Reverend Carriker said in part. "Good desires alone do not guarantee an answer to prayer but must be strengthened by earnest concentration, sincerity, such as is needed in pleading a cause of life and death before a jury."

"The costs of an answered prayer," he continued, "demands a search of the revealed will of God in order that we may know what God has promised us. The cost also depends upon realization of our sense of helpfulness, an acknowledgement of our sins as wickedness and upon our faith in the goodness and mercy of God and in His promises."

BROOKLYN MAN TO SPEAK BEFORE BIBLE STUDENT

Y., and vice president of the International Bible Students' Association will take as his subject, "What Death," will deliver an address in the Star Auditorium Tuesday night. AVOID DIZZY SPELLS

Never well. Always tired and fagged out. Beauty tossed away by neglect. To be beautiful and to keep youth the system must be free from poisonous backwash of constipation which often causes dizzy spells. For 20 years, Dr. F. M. Edwards gave his patients, in place of calomel, a compound of vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Known by their olive color. They free the system of poisons that ravage health, energy, beauty.

You need never have sallow complexion, dull eyes, coated tongue, throbbing headaches—all signs that your bowels are clogged, liver is torpid. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly. They act smoothly and without griping. How much better you'll feel and look! Everywhere wise men and women who know the value of good health take Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c.—Adv.

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Bayer Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If it says Bayer, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Bayer Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Bayer—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

"We can't eat—
the silverware is smeared"

You never apologized for your silver service that way, of course. Perhaps you've wanted to, though, for silverware will get streaked and spotted. Perhaps hard water has a lot to do with that. When you use hard water, the suds won't come. The grease won't go.

Try softening hard water with Melo! Then watch the suds come. They'll cut the grease, and take away the smears. Soft water can do wonders. Get a can of Melo today at your grocer's.

HOW MRS. WEAVER WAS HELPED

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement describing her condition, for, according to her letters, she was subjected to no small amount of ill health. Fortunately, her sister was familiar with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I felt a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound, and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and strong, do my work and take care of three children. I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine, and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Lawrence Weaver, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you knew that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a trial?

MOTHERS, DO THIS—

When the children cough, rub Musterole on their throats and chests. No telling how soon the symptoms may develop into croup, or worse. And then's when you're glad you have a jar of Musterole at hand to give prompt relief.

At first aid, Musterole is excellent. Keep a jar ready for instant use.

It is the remedy for adults, too. Relieves sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, chilblains, frosted feet and colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia.)

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Sally's Shoulders

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," etc.

CHAPTER XLVII

Sally utterly mis- [illegible] that her mother [illegible] about anything. [illegible] toward Mrs. Jerome as a [illegible] might feel toward a [illegible] and bad-tempered [illegible]. She pampered [illegible] and let her have [illegible] she could.

[illegible] eyes were full of [illegible] she turned them upon [illegible] expectant face.

[illegible] being here with [illegible] she said, remember- [illegible] her mother had [illegible] there.

[illegible] sighed and shook her [illegible]

[illegible] she answered. "Your aunt [illegible] me get up so early in the morn- [illegible] yesterday when she asked me [illegible] bushels of green peas I [illegible] how I was going to [illegible] of peas has always [illegible] sick to my stomach. [illegible] to go back to my own home."

[illegible] as she stopped the car [illegible] to unload it, was very sober. [illegible] she said slowly and [illegible] another flat some- [illegible] as I can. But I [illegible] it right now."

"Of course you can afford it! The [illegible] you and your aunt are making [illegible]" she snapped, heavily [illegible] her great body from the car, [illegible] this morning that you [illegible] making a small fortune."

"We aren't." Sally was telling [illegible]. They were making more [illegible] than they had, but their ex- [illegible] were heavier, too.

"Then how could you afford that cos- [illegible]" her mother [illegible] on, her doubting eyes on [illegible] bundle that was [illegible] brown paper [illegible] Sally's new dancing dress.

"Well, I couldn't, as I told you," Sally said bluntly. "But I had to [illegible] That dance seems to help [illegible] our business, somehow or other, and [illegible] old costume was so shabby—"

"I don't believe anybody wants to [illegible] you dance," Mrs. Jerome cut in. "I think the business is picking up be- [illegible] it's summer time—and that's [illegible] more people out here. [illegible] cares about seeing a girl shake [illegible] shoulders and her feet all around a [illegible] anyway?"

Sally might have reminded her that a great many people had wanted to see [illegible] dance. Girls like Irene Castle and Gilda Gray and the Duncan sisters, and Marilyn Miller had made neat for- [illegible] out of "shaking their shoulders and their feet."

But she did not.

She set her lips and went on taking [illegible] of lettuce-heads and baskets of [illegible] chicken out of the back of the car.

Then she followed her mother silent- [illegible] into the house.

It began to dawn upon Sally that [illegible] only Mrs. Jerome, but the whole family thought that she and Aunt Emily were making a great deal of money.

Beau and Mabel began to talk about trading in their shaky little flame-colored roadster for a new car. "Sally can lend us some money and we can pay her back so much a week," Beau remarked easily one Sunday morning when they were all having breakfast together on the back porch.

Sally stared at him, wide-eyed with astonishment. "Lend you the money for a car!" she cried. "Ye gods, Beau, I'm still paying for that new blue costume of mine. I can't lend you any money.

Mabel giggled sharply. "People always get tight when they start making money!" she said. "The only generous people in the world are the people who can't afford to be generous."

Sally flushed. "I hope I won't be tight and stingy when I do start making money, Mabsy," she replied evenly. "But I'm not making any just now. Please believe me. Thirty dollars a week isn't a fortune, you know.

Millie seemed to make the same mistake.

She took to bringing Davy Davidson home with her two or three nights a week, and serving him with one of the $1.50 chicken dinners as nonchalantly as if it had been a hamburger sandwich.

"We aren't in this business for our health, Millicent," Aunt Em caught her up sharply one night after Davidson had gone. "And you'll have to pay for this man's dinners, or else tell him so, if he comes any more."

Millie looked daggers at her. "My goodness, Aunt Em, to begrudge a man the little bit of food that he eats here, when you're making all the money you are!" she said scornfully. "I should think you'd be glad to have him here—to help fill up your dining room and make it look as if it were the most popular place around here."

Aunt Em laughed without mirth. "He comes here to watch Sally, anyway," she remarked. "I've kept my eye on that gentleman and I know."

"Pooh!" Millie was just as scornful as she was, and Sally backed her up in her scorn.

"You're all wrong, Aunt Em!" she declared hotly. "Davidson and Millie have been great friends for years. I scarcely know him."

But there came a night when Aunt Emily's suspicion was proved a well-founded one.

It was a warm, starry night late in June, and the House by the Side of the Road had done a record-breaking business.

At half past twelve Sally was counting over the money they had taken in when the front door opened and Millie and Davidson walked in.

They had spent the evening dancing at "The Lark," for Millie was getting even with Aunt Emily by refusing to step inside of the restaurant at home for a meal.

"Jiminy, but those dancers down at The Lark were wonderful!" she trilled tonight, in a voice loud enough to reach the ears of Aunt Emily, who had gone upstairs.

"Not half so good as Sally," Davidson added solemnly. His gray eyes were on Sally as she bent over the little table, sorting bills and quarters and half dollars.

She could feel them passing over her face, her neck and breast, and settling on the toes of her blue-and-silver slippers.

"Some feet, Sally," he said. "They sure do know how to shake a wicked measure. And your shoulders aren't so slow."

Sally flashed her brilliant smile at him, and went on counting: "Thirty-four—thirty-five—thirty-six—"

"Plenty of money you're taking in, aren't you?" asked Davidson.

It was Millie who answered him.

"I'm going to quit my job if this keeps up," she giggled. "And go into the restaurant business myself. I'm getting awfully sick of the job I've got, anyway." She sighed deeply.

Sally stopped counting and glanced up at her sharply, questioningly.

"You are!" she exclaimed. "Sick of working for John Nye!"

For the thousanth time she wondered how little Millie could fail to be hopelessly, madly, deeply in love with John Nye. How she could waste a minute on a man like Davidson, when she was in close daily contract with the good-looking and altogether fascinating head of the "John Nye Real Estate company."

Millie nodded, her shallow blue eyes shining under the pink brim of her hat. She looked coyly up at Davy Davidson.

"Maybe Davy will get me a place in the office where he's working now," she began, and then stopped short. For Davidson's cold gray eyes were still fixed on Sally, and there was no hint of coldness in them now. They were filled with unmistakable ardor and admiration.

"Sally," he said, quite as if no other person but himself and Sally were there in the wide, bright hall, "you certainly are a pippin!"

"What do you mean?" asked Sally, innocently. "Because I dance, or because I wait on table here, or what?"

She went on counting money. She did not expect Davidson to answer her idle, indifferent questions.

He didn't, either. For before he had time to think of an answer Millie had raised her voice in anger and complaint.

"Well, I like your brass, Mr. Brassington;" she blazed out at him. "If you're so crazy about Sally, why do you bother with me? You'd better face about and stir up the dust outside, I'm saying! Shut the door from the other side, and don't come back! Good night!"

And without a single backward glance she was up the stairs and out of sight. The sound of her sharp little heels sounded on the floor above as she went back and forth in her room, preparing for the night.

Sally, silent with confusion, finished counting her money before she looked up at Davidson.

He was standing just as he had been standing three minutes before, smiling down at her. Evidently Millie's jealous outburst had not disturbed him any more than her command to leave the house had caused him to go.

"Well," he said in an undertone to Sally. "What have you to say about that?"

"I'll say this: Good night!" replied Sally, getting up from her chair with her money in her hands.

She turned toward the little office at the end of the hall, where Aunt Em had a tiny wall safe for her money.

She did not know that Davidson had followed her there, until she had deposited the money in the little strong-hold and closed it.

Then as she turned to go back to the hall, she came face to face with him. He was standing close behind her—so close that when she turned she touched him with one of the dusky white shoulders that curved above the soft blue silk of her dancing dress.

He laid one of his hands on it, covering it.

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

MARY'S THEORY

I HAD known that Mary was sharing my deductions concerning Eleanor Lincoln, but it startled me to hear her so perkily voice the conclusions which I had hesitated to accept, deeming them almost too bizarre for belief. I gave no hint of my reaction, however, and instead assented promptly to the last point she had ticked off her fingers with a gesture as charming as it was childish.

"Yes, I am sure that the 'owl' was either the red-bearded man or his comrade in the woods shack. Her explanation was altogether absurd."

"But what does it all mean?" Mary queried, with irritation in her voice. "I've thought and thought about it, and it's all like the tumbled pieces of a picture puzzle. You can't fit them in."

With a little start her last sentence made me suddenly remember something which Philip Veritzen had said when at his request I had described our new neighbors at The Larches.

"It all fits in," he had commented, and his manner, no less than the words, had signified that he held certain theories concerning our neighbors at The Larches which he was keeping to himself.

"Perhaps," I told Mary, with the memory of Philip Veritzen's manner strong upon me, "perhaps we'll suddenly find the missing piece, and the rest will fall into their places."

But Mary evidenced no enthusiasm at my suggestion.

"Perhaps," she said dubiously, "but it sure is beyond me. At first I shared Grannie's opinion that the Lincoln dame is a member of a gang of crooks. And of course, that owl business tonight looks as if those other men were members of her gang, signaling to her either to remind her of something she has left undone, or telling her they're on her trail for revenge."

I almost ruined my risibles in the attempt to control them, she was so deliciously melodramatic. But finally I managed a quiet, "That is still your theory?"

"No-o!" she answered, and I found vent for my amusement in a sly comment.

"It is hard to reconcile with the charming personality of Mr. Jackson."

She dashed for the door with a touch of the temper she was trying to subdue, turned at it with regained poise and threw a saucy kiss at me.

"I'm not going to stay to be insulted," she declaimed. "But I'll leave you a great thought which just struck me. If you want to find the missing piece in the puzzle why don't you get that Mrs. Townsend to show you a copy of the painting which reminded her so much of the Lincoln dame and the wolfhound?"

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

It was colder yet this morning when me and Jubilee had to get out. I will be glad when I am grown up and can do as I please. I will get me a whole flock of cows that ought to be milked, and then when a cold morning comes I will lay in bed all day. The more work a fella has to do the more comfort he gets from not doing it. There wouldn't be any fun laying in bed if a fella didn't have anything to do and if nobody wanted him to get up.

We got a good one on the Lost Bag of Tripe this morning. He did not get around when the munch was there, so we all went down to the pond, and I took my skates along so if it was froze I could be the first one to skate. It was froze but it was so thin that when we would sail a stone across it would whistle. Then I had an idee and I took Nibs' knife and scratched his name on each of my skates, and then I tied the skates together and reached down low and gave them a swing and sent them skittering across the ice, and I dang them so hard that they went all the way across and stopped against the railroad embankment. Jubilee thought I was sailing them for him to bring back and away he went over the ice, and the ice was so thin we could see it bending under him as he went, and he was so scairt that he came back to us with the skates across the dame instead of across the ice.

Then we waited till we were afraid school would call, for someone to come, but nobody came till we were half ways up the hill, and then the Lost Bag of Tripe came running and met us, and when he seen the skates he asted what I had been doing with them, and I said I sent Nibs across the pond on them. He looked suprised, and looked at Nibs and Nibs was dry, and he asted the bunch and they all said it was so.

Then he asted me to lean them to him, because he wanted to be the second one across, but I told him we'd be late to school. Then he said he would hurry, so I let him take them and he got down the hill to the pond in about two jumps and sat down and put the skates on as quick as he could, then he gave a couple of steps and started to sail out over the ice, but he sailed right through it and fell on his stummick in ice water up to his ears. He was crazy when I showed him Nibs' name scratched on the skates. But all he could say was that I thought I was smart.

My father made me go to bed as soon as I had split the kindling, Jubilee was glad if I wasn't.

Pursuit of happiness that takes one away from home can be identified as merely pursuit of variety.

Infant Care

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless and reliable, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill throughout the system. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, and without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. Castoria is delicious! Your own tongue will tell you why "Children Cry for It." Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's the least sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea. Or whenever there's need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Only one word of warning: the above is true of genuine Castoria. Fletcher's is the original. Other preparations may or may not be as pure, as free from a single doubtful drug. Physicians tell parents to get Fletcher's Castoria, and no child of this writer's is going to test any other kind. I'll save a dime some other way.

*SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

Dora can't come!

Today, and every day, a lot of women count their time to suffer. As regularly as the months come round, comes pain that is borne in silence. "It's Nature," women say. But it isn't!"

Women who have always had the hardest time, have no pain at all from the day they discover Midol.

Midol is the special preparation of specialists, and is not a narcotic. It does nothing to the menstrual process. It does stop the pain—in five to seven minutes! So it is only common sense to use it. And it costs just fifty cents, at any drugstore in tiny carrying case of aluminum.—Adv.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—Adv.

HOT BISCUITS in less time . . .

Whenever I want to serve hot biscuits and haven't the time to roll and cut them, I make drop biscuits.

I use my master biscuit recipe—simply making the batter a little softer by adding extra milk and dropping this batter on baking pans with a spoon. No need to touch the dough with my hands—no table, rolling-pin or sticky hands to wash afterwards! A real saving of time and trouble!

On this page I am giving recipes for both rolled and drop biscuits—also for some fancy biscuits, all variations of the master recipe.

2 new time-saving suggestions

I make all these biscuits with Crisco—for Crisco gives me the lightest, flakiest biscuits I have ever had and in the years I have been cooking I have tried almost everything.

You can mix all the ingredients in the recipe except the milk, keep this mixture in the ice-box and have fresh hot biscuits without taking time to mix them just at meal time. As Crisco itself stays sweet and fresh so long, the mixture will keep a week or longer.

Really I do not know how I could keep house without all the good things to eat that Crisco gives me: Cakes that you cannot tell from butter cakes; tender, flaky pie crusts; light, feathery muffins; and all kinds of wonderful fried foods, without smoke, unpleasant odor or waste.

Whole Wheat Biscuits (Rolled)
with or without raisins

Use one cup whole wheat flour in place of 1 cup bread flour. Add ½ cup Sultana Raisins before adding milk.

Lemon or Orange Tea Biscuits
(Dropped or Rolled)

Stir in 1 teaspoon grated rind before adding milk.

Maple Nut Biscuits
(Rolled)

Roll dough ¼ inch thick, spread with ¼ cup shaved maple sugar mixed with 3 tablespoons Crisco. Roll and cut as for cheese biscuits. Lay in pan, sprinkle maple sugar over each and bake with ½ walnut in center.

Peanut Biscuits
(Rolled)

Sift 1 tablespoon sugar with dry ingredients. Beat two eggs, add enough milk to make ½ cup. Stir in ½ cup chopped peanuts before adding milk.

Master Recipe
for both "Drop" and "Rolled" Biscuits

2 cups bread flour
5 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons Crisco
¾ cup milk or water (for "drop" biscuits) or ½ cup milk or water (for "rolled biscuits)

Sift dry ingredients together 3 times. Work Crisco in with fork. Add liquid gradually.

FOR "DROP" (Emergency) BISCUITS: drop by spoonfuls on Criscoed baking pan. Brush top of biscuits with melted Crisco or milk. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 10 to 15 minutes.

FOR ROLLED BISCUITS: form dough into shape, roll ½ inch thick, cut. For scone-shaped biscuits, cut squares, then diagonally in half. Brush top of biscuits with melted Crisco or milk. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Makes about 12 biscuits.

To use buttermilk or sour milk beat in ¼ teaspoon soda for each cup of milk. (If milk is very thick, use a little more milk.) Use same amount of baking powder and follow method for either "drop" or "rolled" biscuits.

Put a little Crisco on the tip of one finger. On the tip of another finger put a little of any other cooking fat you have in the house. Now taste them both. Which do you like better? Crisco's delicate, sweet flavor will astonish you.

Cheese Rolls (Rolled)
Delicious for soups and salads

Roll dough ¼ inch thick. Sprinkle with about ¾ cup (grated) cheese. Roll as you would jelly roll. Cut slices ¾ inch thick, lay in Criscoed pan cut side down.

Delicious Raisin Biscuits
(Rolled)

Sift ½ cup sugar with dry ingredients. Beat one egg, add enough more milk to make ½ cup. Stir in ½ cup chopped raisins before adding milk.

RED CROSS EXTENDS FLOOD RELIEF AID

Funds at National Headquarters Sufficient To Take Care of Work

Announcement that the American Red Cross is financing relief work in the New England flood districts from funds now in its treasury and that solicitation of special contributions will no be necessary, was received today at local Red Cross headquarters.

The communication, which came from Judge John Barton Payne, chairman of the central committee of the national Red Cross, says, in part:

"It is to meet situations such as this, without the necessity of a special campaign for funds, that the goal of 5,000,000 Red Cross members has been fixed for the annual roll call beginning Nov. 11, 1927.

"National headquarters of the Red Cross or any of its chapters is prepared, however, to receive such contributions as are tendered by those who may desire to have direct participation in this relief work, and add them to the funds made available from the Red Cross disaster reserve. This is not in any sense an appeal for contributions as the Red Cross is relying upon the response in the forthcoming roll call to meet its needs, other than for very large emergencies."

Roll Call Drive

Local Red Cross officials, who will start the annual roll call campaign here Wednesday and continue it until Monday, Nov. 14, point to the relief work being done in New England as a timely example of the service being rendered at all times by the organization.

Marion County's quota in the nation-wide roll call is 2,500 members and a fund of $10,000. All but a small percentage of this money will remain here for use in relief and charity work throughout the county. The part to be sent to the national Red Cross will be based on a schedule of 50 cents for each member.

The opening message of the roll call drive here will come Wednesday noon from Everett Dix, [illegible] manager of the eastern [illegible] Red Cross, who will [illegible] address at a joint [illegible] wanis and Rotary clubs.

In his talk, the subject [illegible] will be conveyed to the [illegible] the press, Mr. Dix will [illegible] work of the Red Cross and [illegible] vital importance to every com[illegible]

ED OF ENGINEERS CITED BY OFFICER

mber of Commerce Reives Communication on Reserve Corps Enlistments

a letter urging that steps be taken ...ollist local civil engineers for ser... in the officers' reserve corps of ...e United States Army was received ...day by the Marion Chamber of Com... ...ce from Col. H. A. Toulmin, Jr. of ...ton, commanding officer of the ...rteenth Engineer General Service Regi... ...rt of Reserves.

In his letter the commanding officer ...s out that although Marion is ...

headquarters of the Second Battalion of the regiment, there are very few engineers in this city and vicinity who are in the engineer corps reserve. Major Loring K. Warner is in command of the battalion.

"As it is a matter of some public importance and considerable interest to Marion to have this battalion so located there," Col. Toulmin writes, "I am wondering if you could cooperate with me in seeing if you could locate young men who are engineering graduates who have had either war training or military training in universities who are not in the reserve corps and who reside in Marion or in the vicinity of Marion who would like to receive commissions in the reserve corps and be assigned to this battalion."

To Co-operate

George B. Knapp, president of the Chamber of Commerce, indicated today that Toulmin's request would be conveyed to engineers eligible for commissions and an effort made to have them offer their services.

In closing his letter, Col. Toulmin wrote: "Knowing Marion as I do as an outstanding center for engineering work, it seems particularly fitting that the Second Battalion of this regiment should have its headquarters there and recruit from Marion a fine corps of engineer officers."

Toledo is headquarters for the First Battalion and Dayton is temporarily regimental headquarters. The commanding officer states, however, that activities of the regiment will be concentrated in the northern part of the state.

Meditations OF A Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

But They're All We Have—To Love

A WOMAN can keep right on loving a man, no matter how often he hurts her heart; but the moment he offends her imagination, he is "out of the picture."

A woman may not be sure that a man has done all the things of which she suspects him; but she is always perfectly sure that he WILL if she'll only give him the chance and the time.

The average man is constantly turning over a new leaf—so that he can have more room to blot up the pages.

The job of private secretary doesn't offer a girl the most liberal salary in the world; but it comes pretty near to affording her the most liberal education.

Before marriage, a man declares that his dearest wish is to do everything on earth to make you happy; but after marriage, it takes all your strength and energy to FORCE him to grant his own wish.

To forgive a man for ONE sentimental indiscretion may be policy; to forgive him twice is charity; to forgive him three times is magnanimity—but to forgive him any oftener, is lunacy!

Being a platonic friend to a man means merely being the mother-confessor of all his heart affairs, and the receptacle of all his marital woes.

Nothing is weaker than a man's faith in a woman's love—for another man.—Copyright, 1927, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

We are all human; and all make mistakes, but to "Serve Its Community Best," a store must be sincere and willing to correct its mistakes.

A store must prize above everything else its reputation of honest dealing, to be fair with its customers, that they can hold confidence in its merchandise. No matter how small the purchase, to sell it with a guarantee of satisfaction or money back, and always mean exactly what they say, this will keep faith with the people, and give them the service they have a right to expect, make no favoritism between rich and poor, the wage earner or the banker.

"To Serve Its Community Best," a store must sell "Master Made" furniture—because the life of all furniture depends on the way it is made.

The Bride and Groom as they select their lovely home furnishings, want the "Best," that the home of their dreams, can be the show-place of their neighborhood.

Then, Father and Mother when looking around for something new to dress up the home, that it will be more cheerful and cozy, will go to the store of quality, for the "Best" is none to good for them.

When the finest homes, the new apartment or hotels, with the thought of new furniture in mind, always want the loveliest, niftiest, most comfortable, something just ahead of everybody else—Up-to-the-Minute Style, they want furniture made for life-time service, and will buy at the store that has value supreme, the style leader of the day.

"To Serve Its Cummunity Best" a store should conduct its business upon "Quality First" and with prices to suit every one's purse, but never to sacrifice quality to make a low price, that a customer can compare their prices with assurance that nowhere will they find better quality for the price paid.

Then watch the reward—from a small store, by steady growth from its reputation, from year to year, to a larger business a "A Pioneer Store" with a name that will merit the public trade.

Honesty and courtesy are two important policies that should be carried out in a furniture store. If the store advertises certain pieces of furniture and offers a discount or a reasonable price, the store ought to do what they have agreed. People do not always trust clerks if they have been dishonest in things. So it always pays to have honest, trustworthy and confidential clerks that can be trusted by anyone. When people are met by courteous clerks, they are much more willing to buy furniture.

If the store promises people that they will have goods delivered at a definite time, it is their duty to have it done or they are not doing what they have agreed to do.

Accommodation is another policy which people appreciate. When clerks are accommodating, people are more willing to patronize the store and help to advertise it. If these policies are carried out, the store will increase its customers and will have better business. The store will not only keep its old customers, but it will gain new ones.

The first and best way that a Furniture Store may serve its community, I would suggest a nice, light, pleasant restroom in the front of the store, filled with comfortable rockers, where the furniture buyers may gather and discuss the latest styles and designs in household furnishings.

I would make this reception room as attractive as possible; using small tables upon which I would place artistic vases, filled with fragrant flowers; and have plenty of good reading material at hand.

By serving the community best, the furniture dealers meet all kinds and classes of people, who practically all need furniture of some sort, but who have not the necessary amount of cash on hand to purchase it.

The Store may help them as well as themselves, by selling on the credit plan, to those who are worthy—that is a small payment on delivery and the balance monthly or to suit the purchaser.

Another way a Furniture Store may serve its community is by advertising. It helps us find what we want, gives us an idea of the price, without wasting so much of our valuable time.

We may at our leisure look over the advertising sheet and find the location and time of the Special Sales, as so many people with lean purses look forward to.

The Furniture Store might serve it community by having its managers give short talks and advice on the care of furniture and demonstrate the right kind of polish for the highly polished wood which is found in most furniture.

Last I would suggest a Furniture Store may pleasantly serve its community by keeping a good radio for the entertainment of its patrons in order that the less fortunate ones might occasionally gather to listen to the wonderful programs.

There are several things that you could feel 100% certain of, if we furnished your home.

One of them is that we buy only from such manufacturers as will guarantee their furniture. This enables us, in turn, to guarantee to you.

The second is that, piece for piece, quality for quality, you buy here as low, and usually lower, than you can buy elsewhere.

Number three—If long-time credit is desired, you get it as a Schaffner service. No inferior quality because you wish credit. No exorbitant prices because you wish credit.

Number four—We are not afraid to show appreciation of your patronage, and we try to run this store in a manner to deserve your patronage.

RED CROSS EXTENDS FLOOD RELIEF AID

Funds at National Headquarters Sufficient To Take Care of Work

Announcement that the American Red Cross is financing relief work in the New England flood districts from funds now in its treasury and that solicitation of special contributions will no be necessary, was received today at local Red Cross headquarters.

The communication, which came from Judge John Barton Payne, chairman of the central committee of the national Red Cross, says, in part:

"It is to meet situations such as this, without the necessity of a special campaign for funds, that the goal of 5,000,000 Red Cross members has been fixed for the annual roll call beginning Nov. 11, 1927.

"National headquarters of the Red Cross or any of its chapters is prepared, however, to receive such contributions as are tendered by those who may desire to have direct participation in this relief work, and add them to the funds made available from the Red Cross disaster resource. This is not in any sense an appeal for contributions as the Red Cross is relying upon the response in the forthcoming roll call to meet its needs, other than for very large emergencies."

Roll Call Drive

Local Red Cross officials, who will start the annual roll call campaign here Wednesday and continue it until Monday, Nov. 14, point to the relief work being done in New England as a timely example of the service being rendered at all times by the organization.

Marion County's quota in the nation-wide roll call is 2,500 members and a fund of $10,000. All but a small percentage of this money will remain here for use in relief and charity work throughout the county. The part to be sent to the national Red Cross will be based on a schedule of 50 cents for each member.

The opening message of the roll call drive here will come Wednesday noon from Everett Dix, staff assistant to the manager of the eastern area, American Red Cross, who will give the principal address at a joint meeting of the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs.

In his talk, the substance of which will be conveyed to the public through the press, Mr. Dix will outline the work of the Red Cross and show its vital importance to every community.

ED OF ENGINEERS CITED BY OFFICER

mber of Commerce Re- ves Communication on Re- serve Corps Enlistments letter stating that steps be taken ualist local civil engineers for ser- in the officers' reserve corps of e United States Army was received by the Marion Chamber of Com- ce from Col. H. A. Toulmin, Jr., of ce, commanding officer of the rps, Engineer General Service Regi- ent, Officers' Reserves.

In his letter the commanding officer points out that although Marion is headquarters of the Second Battalion of the regiment, there are very few engineers in this city and vicinity who are in the engineer corps reserve. Major Loring K. Warner is in command of the battalion.

"As it is a matter of some public importance and considerable interest to Marion to have this battalion so located there," Col. Toulmin writes, "I am wondering if you could cooperate with me in seeing if you could locate young men who are engineering graduates who have had either war training or military training in universities who are not in the reserve corps and who reside in Marion or in the vicinity of Marion who would like to receive commissions in the reserve corps and be assigned to this battalion."

To Co-operate

George B. Knapp, president of the Chamber of Commerce, indicated today that Toulmin's request would be conveyed to engineers eligible for commissions and an effort made to have them offer their services.

In closing his letter, Col. Toulmin wrote: "Knowing Marion as I do as an outstanding center for engineering work, it seems particularly fitting that the Second Battalion of this regiment should have its headquarters there and recruit from Marion a fine corps of engineer officers."

Toledo is headquarters for the First Battalion and Dayton is temporarily regimental headquarters. The commanding officer states, however, that activities of the regiment will be concentrated in the northern part of the state.

Meditations OF A Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

But They're All We Have—To Love

A WOMAN can keep right on loving a man, no matter how often he hurts her heart: but the moment he offends her imagination, he is "out of the picture."

A woman may not be sure that a man has done all the things of which she suspects him: but she is always perfectly sure that he WILL if she'll only give him the chance and the time.

The average man is constantly turning over a new leaf—so that he can have more room to blot up the pages.

The job of private secretary doesn't offer a girl the most liberal salary in the world: but it comes pretty near to affording her the most liberal education.

Before marriage, a man declares that his dearest wish is to do everything on earth to make you happy: but after marriage, it takes all your strength and energy to FORCE him to grant his own wish.

To forgive a man for ONE sentimental indiscretion may be policy: to forgive him twice is charity: to forgive him three times, is magnanimity—but to forgive him any oftener, is lunacy!

Being a platonic friend to a man means merely being the mother-confessor of all his heart affairs and the receptacle of all his marital woes.

Nothing is weaker than a man's faith in a woman's love—for another man.—Copyright, 1927, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

We are all human; and all make mistakes, but to "Serve Its Community Best," a store must be sincere and willing to correct its mistakes.

A store must prize above everything else its reputation of honest dealing, to be fair with its customers, that they can hold confidence in its merchandise. No matter how small the purchase, to sell it with a guarantee of satisfaction or money back, and always mean exactly what they say, this will keep faith with the people, and give them the service they have a right to expect, make no favoritism between rich and poor, the wage earner or the banker.

"To Serve Its Community Best," a store must sell "Master Made" furniture—because the life of all furniture depends on the way it is made.

The Bride and Groom as they select their lovely home furnishings, want the "Best," that the home of their dreams, can be the show-place of their neighborhood.

Then, Father and Mother when looking around for something new to dress up the home, that it will be more cheerful and cozy, will go to the store of quality, for the "Best" is none to good for them.

When the finest homes, the new apartment or hotels, with the thought of new furniture in mind, always want the loveliest, niftiest, most comfortable, something just ahead of everybody else—Up-to-the-Minute Style, they want furniture made for life-time service, and will buy at the store that has value supreme, the style leader of the day.

"To Serve Its Community Best" a store should conduct its business upon "Quality First" and with prices to suit every one's purse, but never to sacrifice quality to make a low price, that a customer can compare their prices with assurance that nowhere will they find better quality for the price paid.

Then watch the reward—from a small store, by steady growth from its reputation, from year to year, to a larger business a "A Pioneer Store" with a name that will merit the public trade.

Honesty and courtesy are two important policies that should be carried out in a furniture store. If the store advertises certain pieces of furniture and offers a discount or a reasonable price, the store ought to do what they have agreed. People do not always trust clerks if they have been dishonest in things. So it always pays to have honest, trustworthy and confidential clerks that can be trusted by anyone. When people are met by courteous clerks, they are much more willing to buy furniture.

If the store promises people that they will have goods delivered at a definite time, it is their duty to have it done or they are not doing what they have agreed to do.

Accommodation is another policy which people appreciate. When clerks are accommodating, people are more willing to patronize the store and help to advertise it. If these policies are carried out, the store will increase its customers and will have better business. The store will not only keep its old customers, but it will gain new ones.

There are several things that you could feel 100% certain of, if we furnished your home.

One of them is that we buy only from such manufacturers as will guarantee their furniture. This enables us, in turn, to guarantee to you.

The second is that, piece for piece, quality for quality, you buy here as low, and usually lower, than you can buy elsewhere.

Number three—If long-time credit is desired, you get it as a Schaffner service. No inferior quality because you wish credit. No exhorbitant prices because you wish credit.

Number four—We are not afraid to show appreciation of your patronage, and we try to run this store in a manner to deserve your patronage.

The first and best way that a Furniture Store may serve its community, I would suggest a nice, light, pleasant restroom in the front of the store, filled with comfortable rockers, where the furniture buyers may gather and discuss the latest styles and designs in household furnishings.

I would make this reception room as attractive as possible; using small tables upon which I would place artistic vases, filled with fragrant flowers; and have plenty of good reading material at hand.

By serving the community best, the furniture dealers meet all kinds and classes of people, who practically all need furniture of some sort, but who have not the necessary amount of cash on hand to purchase it.

The Store may help them as well as themselves, by selling on the credit plan, to those who are worthy—that is a small payment on delivery and the balance monthly or to suit the purchaser.

Another way a Furniture Store may serve its community is by advertising. It helps us find what we want, gives us an idea of the price, without wasting so much of our valuable time.

We may at our leisure look over the advertising sheet and find the location and time of the Special Sales, as so many people with lean purses look forward to.

The Furniture Store might serve it community by having its managers give short talks and advice on the care of furniture and demonstrate the right kind of polish for the highly polished wood which is found in most furniture.

Last I would suggest a Furniture Store may pleasantly serve its community by keeping a good radio for the entertainment of its patrons in order that the less fortunate ones might occasionally gather to listen to the wonderful programs.

Galion Congregation Votes To Sponsor Much Needed Improvement

Galion, Nov. 7—An interesting congregational meeting was held at the First Reformed church yesterday morning following the regular worship session and several important matters were introduced for discussion. T. H. Polster, prominent member of the church consistory had charge of the meeting and a number of church officials and members spoke upon various phases of property improvement. The principal subject of discussion centered about the large lot adjoining the church, which has been unused for some time. Plans drawn by Kelse Polster, county surveyor and a member of the church, were exhibited, showing how the lot could be made into an attractive parking space. To relieve congestion on the city's main thoroughfare and to offer further protection to church members, the plan was unanimously adopted and work will soon be begun on the improvement. Driving lanes are to be macadamized, picturesque grass plots and shrubbery laid out and the private parking space will be well lighted by large and artistic lamps. In addition to accommodating church goers, the improvement will be a great aid in the city's beautification program.

Directs Choir

At the services of the church, Rev. G. F. Zinn used as his sermon subjects, "The Enlarged Life" and "More Than Emotion Needed," with the choir assisting with special music. Mrs. Harry Budd, director of the church musical group has been given a several months leave of absence and Mrs. Howard Evans, prominent local musician and formerly supervisor of music in the city schools, has been chosen as substitute.

At the First United Brethren church Rev. W. O. Montague began an interesting series of sermons on the "Absolute and Unalterable Standards of Jesus," which gives promise of being among the most unusual of recent topics. At the service last night, Roger Montague, son of the church's pastor, had charge of the service and delivered an excellent sermon. Montague is a Senior in Galion high school where he is majoring in English and Bible study and contemplates a course in theology.

Rev. Theodore Grob, Terre Haute, Ind., was the speaker at the morning service at the Market Street Methodist Church and delivered an interesting and informative address upon the work of the Good Will Industry. Rev. Grob is superintendent of this project and his talk upon experiences and impressions of the work was very interesting.

"Christ's Eternal Priesthood" and "New Testament Salvation" were the topics for services at the Free Methodist church, East-st, with Rev. Walter C. Fowler as minister.

Observe Festival

The First Lutheran Church observed its annual harvest home festival with a special sermon, "The Whitening Harvest," by Rev. O. C. Kramer and special music by the choir under the direction of R. R. Ehrhart. Offerings of fruit and vegetables were received for the Springfield Orphans' Home. "If We Neglect" was the topic for last night's sermon.

Rev. S. A. Stephen gave a sermon of unusual interest to young people yesterday morning at the First Methodist church, "Is the Church Making Good?" and sketched the progress of the Christian church and its effect upon other modern conditions. The service last night was on the subject of law enforcement in the state and was especially fitting to the pre-election season.

M. L. Buckley delivered the sermon at the Church of Christ, "Believing With the Heart," and Rev. E. M. Young of Ravenna was the guest rector of Grace Episcopal church, having charge of the morning prayer services and the sermon and study session.

$350,000 DAMAGE ACTION RECORDED

Ohio Public Service Co. Defendant in Suit at Kenton

Kenton, Nov. 7—One of the largest damage cases in the history of Hardin County was recorded here Saturday when Harry E. Schmidt, prominent oil and gas man, filed an amended petition in common pleas court seeking $350,000 damages from the Ohio Public Service Co.

Schmidt obtained an injunction against the defendant company some weeks ago when his original petition was filed enjoining the company from tearing up its lines through which Schmidt delivers gas.

Schmidt in his petition charges that in violation of a contract, the defendant shut off the supply from his fields and refused to accept his gas though he is prepared to deliver at least 750,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

EXPECT HEAVY VOTE IN GALION ELECTION

Party Rivalry at High Pitch; Hartmann, Badgley Candidates for Mayor

Galion, Nov. 7—Unusual interest in local elections is being shown this year as Galion voters prepare for their duty at the polls tomorrow and candidates are busy with last minute campaign plans. Special significance is attached to some of the offices that are to be filled, because of many controveries which have arisen during the past several weeks of election activities. Party rivalry is at its highest pitch and election managers are expecting more votes to be cast than ever before in the history of the city.

Important as always is the choice of mayor and for this position, two well known men are candidates, H. H. Hartmann, who has already served a number of terms, is a candidate for re-election for the Democratic party while J. M Badgley, former president of the council is the choice of Republicans. Both are well qualified for the position and a close race is anticipated.

Election of members for the school board is also causing much concern as matters have became quite complicated within the past year. Three members, George E. Nickels, Mrs. Kate Mitchell Casey and Dr. F. C. McGaughy are candidates for re-election. The Federation of Women's Clubs is heartily endorsing Mrs. Casey and also Mrs. Grace Bloomer, another candidate. Stentz S. Motsinger is also a prospective member of the board of education and his interest in student views and his recent connection as officer of the Alumni association make him a favorite. Mrs. Ellen Shea is East Galion's representative for the school governing body and the contest will be very closely followed by school enthusiasts.

SCHOOL FAIR

Holmes-Liberty Students To Hold Exposition, Nov. 18-19

Bucyrus, Nov. 7—The agricultural students of the Holmes-Liberty School will hold its fair Nov. 18 and 19.

No new cases have developed and sponsors of the fair feel they can proceed with their program without fear of subjecting children to infection.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH OPENED AT KENTON

Girl Reserves Hold Annual Service for New Members

Kenton, Nov. 7—A new service was added to the many different religious gatherings in Kenton Sunday when the St. Paul's Episcopal church reopened its doors after having been closed for many months. Under present arrangements weekly evensong and sermon will be conducted each Sunday in charge of the Rev. John Keeney McDowell, Findlay, rector of Trinity church, that city.

One of the outstanding meetings Sunday was the recognition service held by the Girl Reserves of the Kenton high school in the First Presbyterian church. Prospective members were received into the group with public ceremonies. Among the honored guests were the mothers.

Rev. E. V. Belles, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, spoke before the union church service in the Church of Christ.

The annual missionary convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance church opened Monday following a special preparatory meeting series on Sunday when Rev. Talmadge Wiley, missionary from Afghan-India, spoke.

During the two day meeting services are being held in the afternoon and evening with well known returned missionaries appearing. The speakers are: Rev. H. E. Nelson, assistant district superintendent, Beulah, Ohio; Rev. T. Wiley, missionary from Afghan-Indian border and Rev. Ferry, missionary from Indio-China. Rev. C. S. Hallberg, local pastor, is in charge of the services.

After a two weeks' suspension as the result of the recent Kenton Board of Health order closing public gatherings to children to prevent a possible spread of the infantile paralysis, Bible school sessions were resumed in the various houses of worship.

NIGHT SERVICES OF CHURCHES VARIED

Edna Beougher, Logan, Opens Evangelistic Campaign at Upper Sandusky

Upper Sandusky, Nov. 7—Night services in a number of the churches were made interesting Sunday by varying their programs with special features. At the Methodist Episcopal Church, Attorney Edwin S. Boger, of Toledo, addressed a mass meeting in the interest of the Marshall Bill. There was special music by Walter Sloop, blind baritone, during this service. At the morning service, the pastor of the church, Rev. C. R. Williamson, used as the theme for his sermon, "Our Sacred Trust."

Miss Edna Beougher, Logan, gave the first message of a series of services beginning the evangelistic campaign, which will be from Nov. 6 to Nov. 20, at the Trinity Evangelical Church. Services will be held each night at 7:30, except Saturday night. Miss Beougher has been connected with evangelistic work since she was 11 years old. Rev. N. W. Sager, church pastor, gave the morning sermon on "Confession of Sin Resulting in Forgiveness."

The night service at the Trinity Reformed Church was given entirely to the contestants of that church who are entering the Prince of Peace Declamation Contest. The morning service being a special "Parents' Service" was in charge of the adults of the church, and the pastor, Rev. George W. Good, used the subject, "Leading the Way" to bring to the parents the importance of their obligation to the youth of today, in guiding, directing and leading them in the right way.

Contestants in the Declamation Contest from Emanuel's Reformed Church, gave their orations during the morning service.

Communion services were held at the St. Paul's Lutheran Church Sunday morning and Rally Day was observed during the Sunday School hour. Special features of the Sunday School program were music by the church orchestra under the direction of Prof. T. R. Evans and a reading, "Christ Restored," by Richard Kneisley.

W. H. Kibler, a student of Wittenberg College, had charge of the services at the English Lutheran Church. Services at the Trinity Episcopal Mission, Sunday afternoon, were in charge of Rev. S. S. Hardy, Marion, Ohio.

Rev. Frederick Cromer, of the Presbyterian Church, chose as his topic for the morning service "Christ's Teaching About Man" and at night he spoke on "The Most Important Work of Life." Regular services were held at the Christian Science Church and at the St. Peter's Catholic Church.

SLATER IN CINCINNATI TO VOTE IN ELECTION

Bucyrus, Nov. 7—Ora Slater, detective, who has been investigating the Roy Heckler case of Crestline, returned to his home in Cincinnati, Saturday, postponing the investigation until he casts his vote in the local election at Cincinnati.

Indications are that nothing new has developed and that whether Heckler was murdered after a drunken brawl or whether he met his death in an accidental fall from a high railroad embankment, is still a mystery.

EDUCATIONAL WEEK TO BE OBSERVED AT BUCYRUS

FOSTORIA DEFEATS BUCYRUS ELEVEN

Wintermen Show Poor Brand of Football Against Red and Black

Bucyrus, Nov. 7—Playing a rather ragged game of football and showing fight only on occasions, the local gridders lost a close battle to Fostoria Saturday by a score of 19 to 13.

Had the Wintermen played the brand of football they did against Marion, they would have won easily. Entering the second half with a 6 0 lead on them, Bucyrus came back to tie the score in the first few minutes of play.

Throughout the remainder of the game, the opposing teams battled back and forth with the Red and Black gridders having a slight edge on the locals. In the final moments of play, the winning touchdown was scored when a Fostoria halfback received a pass and stepped over the goal line.

THIS MARION MAN FREE OF AGONIES O F INDIGESTION

He Tells How Konjola Banished Two Years of Stomach Trouble.

"I think I must be the happiest man in Marion, since Konjola has ended my stomach trouble, and I don't hesitate to indorse such a medicine," said Mr. J. H. Williams, well-kpown local citizen, living at 621 E. George St., this city, while talking a few days ago with The Konjola Man at Stump & Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, Marion. Mr. Williams has been in the employ of the Erie Railroad thirty years.

"I had been suffering with stomach and liver trouble," said Mr. Williams. "My food would never digest right, but always seemed to turn sour and ferment. This caused gas bloating and my heart would flutter and jump until I thought it would stop beating entirely. I would become so short of breath I had to gasp for air. Dizzy spells would come over me, especially when I attempted to stoop over. Lots of times I had to catch myself to keep from falling. I was badly constipated all the time and had to take the strongest laxatives almost every night. I was in very poor health in general, and had been trying so many things without benefit that I didn't know what to do for myself.

"A friend of mine told me about Konjola and how so many people in Marion were getting wonderful results with this medicine. I got two bottles and before the first one was gone I could feel a big improvement all over my system, and as I continued with Konjola I was getting better every day. Now I feel like a different man. I can eat what I want and never have a touch of indigestion. The bloating spells never come over me, and I don't have the dizzy attacks or headaches. I have a better appetite and can sleep good at nights. My food agrees with me better that it has in two years, and I am feeling like I never had stomach trouble in my life.

"Konjola has built me up in a great many ways and I certainly am thankful for this medicine, so it is a pleasure to indorse it to everyone who is needing it."

The Konjola Man is at the Stump & Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, Marion, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Adv.

The half opened with Mansfield kick... to Iowa who returned to the Hard... ing 45 yard line. Harding's fierce drive was by no means burnt out and the Red and Black carried the ball back deep into Mansfield territory only to lose it on downs when a pass was incomplete. It was then that Mansfield pulled together and for the first time looked like a football team. F. McMullen, Shaskey and Perkins, all big and rangy, presented an offense that the Red and Black for the first time in the game was not able to fathom.

Mansfield was clicking off first downs rapidly. Just before the quarter ended a pass gained 12 yards. Shaskey and McMullen got two yards and Perkins was thrown without gain as the quarter ended.

According to mathematics, calculus and trigonometry Mansfield should have had fourth and eight. But when the teams lined up for the fourth quarter it was fourth and one. An argument ensued but the referee refused to reverse the decision of headlinesman and after Coach Murphy admitted that his team only had one yard to go there was nothing to do but play football.

McMullen started pounding the Harding line for substantial gains and it was these that scored the Mansfield touchdown. Perkins' kick was wide and Harding had won the football game.

The quarter ended with both teams still battling desperately. McAninch and Stafford did some nice work but were unable to get the ball back in scoring distance. McAninch clicked off 10 through the line as the game ended.

JACK INVESTS

Dempsey Becomes One of Largest Shareholders of Garden

New York, Nov. 7—Jack Dempsey is about to clip a few coupons as a stockholder in the great industry that he has played no small role in creating. It was reported today that the former champion has become one of the largest shareholders in the Madison Square Garden Corporation, ranking next to Tex Rickard in the amount of stock held. He was said to have paid $150,000 for his stock.

Big Ten RaceMay End Tie

Chicago, Nov. 7—It begins to look as though those who follow conference football will have to wait until the last day of the season to find out the identity of 1927 Big Ten King and even if they wait that long there may not be an exclusive titleholder.

Last Saturday's ball games did nothing at all to clear up the middle around the top of the standing. Illinois, one of the joint holders of first place, swatted Iowa while Minnesota went out of the conference to battle Notre Dame.

Looking forward to next Saturday's pastimes we find that Minnesota has decided to rest up after the Notre Dame affair by playing Drake from the corn country. That ball game at Urbana between Illinois and Chicago may gum up things a bit.

It is only sensible to figure that Illinois will win and if that happens then the boys and girls will have to look forward to Nov. 19 when Illinois meets Ohio State and Minnesota engages Michigan.

If both the Illini and the Gophers win their last tilts of the season we will have two elevens tied for first place. If that's the case you'll probably hear a lot of argument to the effect that Illinois should be awarded the championship because the Gophers were held to a tie by Indiana, a team which is low in the race.

The conference schedule doesn't look any too enticing for those who like their football the way it is played in the Big Ten. Outside of the Chicago-Illinois game there isn't so much too rave about. Northwestern takes on Indiana and the result will prove which team is the worst. The Wisconsin-Iowa game will prove little or nothing. Ohio State is playing Denison. Purdue will oppose Franklin and Minnesota relaxes with Drake.

From an intersectional standpoint two mighty ball games stand out. The Navy goes to Ann Arbor to play Michigan while Rockne's trooping warriors will square off with the Soldiers of West Point. Both of these contests should be hot enough to tickle any football fan. Of the four Notre Dame is the only team that hasn't been beaten. Michigan was laced by Illinois, the Army by Yale and the Navy by Notre Dame.

Michigan, with Gilbert back in the lineup, was given a slight edge over the Maroons. The ability of the Gilbert Oosterbaan passing combination to work at its best once again and the injury of Capt. Kennie Rouse, one of the greatest centers in the country, make it possible for the Wolverines to bag a pair of touchdowns.

Illinois wracked Iowa as expected and Wisconsin goofed around a bit with Grinnel.

That Minnesota-Notre Dame game at South Bend was one of the most vicious football battles we have ever seen. The teams played bone crushing football and it was a wonder that not more than one man was carried off the field. Not a serious injury was reported because the coaches told the players to play cleanly and as far as is known they did.

Minnesota produced one of the hardest driving teams since the early days of the game. At times the Gopher backs were smacking the Notre Dame line pitilessly. And the strange part of it is that it wasn't Mr. Joesting who was doing the most damage. It was this fellow Nydahl who was a pain in the neck to the Irish.

Unbeaten Teams Check Up More Victories with Exception of Washington; Ohio State Reverts to Form and Loses to Tigers, 20-0

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Nov. 7—After giving due consideration to the futility of those tie scores involving the unbeaten teams of Notre Dame and Minnesota and Pittsburgh and W. and J., when a victory either way would have served the best interests of the figure filberts, the writer feels impelled to paraphase Longfellow, which I'll admit is going not to an extreme but quite beyond the utmost. Anyway, the fall comes out of Henry when I say that those ties are best described as "something attempted, nothing done to earn a night's repose."

However, the entire covey of undefeated entries—Notre Dame, Minnesota, Pitt, W. and J., Washington, Georgia, Illinois, Princeton New York University and Tennessee—went for a ride on Saturday and Washington was the only one that didn't come back with the driver.

Still, something was proved out on the coast on Saturday and that is more than can be said of the two big games in the middle west and east. Minnesota didn't get that tie until the dying minutes of the game and then only on what Rockne explains as a mix-up in signals that caused a fumble; yet, on the run of the play, the Gophers would seem to have been in a commanding position more times than Notre Dame.

So it was the Pitt-W. and J. game, which apparently saw the former outrush its opponent but not outscore it. Unfortunately, the pay off window is right at the score board.

As for the other good ones—and, as far as I am concerned, these include defeated as well as undefeated outfits—Georgia proceeded nearer the southern title by winning readily from Florida; Illinois made it three straight in the Big Ten Conference at the expense of Iowa; Nebraska gave evidence of where the real strength lies in the Missouri Valley by running up 47 points on Kansas, and Princeton scored a surprisingly easy victory over Ohio State.

With only the Yale game before them, this victory automatically advances the unbeaten Tigers to my top rank of teams. At the same time, Southern Methodist drops a flight because of its defeat by Texas Aggies, 20 to 13. The Methodists, it seems, keep scoring but so does the other fellow and at least twice this year the latter has forgot to stop in time.

However, that other Southern entry, Tennessee, kept right on going and, if it gets by Vanderbilt next Saturday, will contest Georgia to the last syllable for the Southern Championship. Both Vandy and Georgia Tech had a chance to declare themselves back in the portrait but finished in a scoreless tie. Meanwhile, Texas one-pointed Baylor out of a decision.

Yale and Army, one-defeat teams that still are with the front-runners, won impressively. Yale scored 30 points on Maryland, all of them in the first half, and the Cadets ran up 45 on Franklin and Marshall for a total of more than eighty in their last two games.

Penn State, another eastern leader, didn't look so hot in being held to 13 points by George Washington, which brings us to poignant pass wherein must be related the fact that Harvard, brave, old Harvard, blew another. This time, Pennsylvania, defeated successively by Penn State, Chicago and the Navy, used the hidden ball instead of the hidden touchdown and scored by 24 to 0, leaving Harvard nothing except Dr. Eliot's five foot shelf.

Joseph Duffy, star fullback of the University of Dayton eleven, can throw the ball equally well with either arm and kick with either foot.

MAY LOSE HONORS

Lane of Dartmouth Being Pushed Hard for Scoring Honors

New York, Nov. 7—Myles Lane, of Dartmouth, today continued to hold his long lead in the east's individual scoring race.

As the race for eastern grid honors nears the end, Lane's superiority in the individual scoring department will probably topple with it. The brilliant Green halfback has been held to a single point in the last two games Dartmouth played against Yale and Brown. As a result, Captain Roepke, of Penn State, is close on his heels.

Wittmer, by scoring a trio of touchdowns against Ohio State last Saturday, is also threatening Lane's crown. He has a total of 61 points.

The Madrid soccer team of Spain has sailed from New York for home after a highly successful tour in South America, Cuba and Mexico, winding up with two games in New York.

Los Angeles, Nov. 7—Joe Dundee, world's welterweight champion, whose failure to appear in the ring here last Thursday night against Ace Hudkins precipitated the greatest fistic flop in the annals of boxing, will defend his title against the Nebraska challenger at Wrigley Field on the night of Nov. 21, if the State Athletic Commission sanctions the re-match.

Deputy Treasurer Writes of Taxes, Improvements

A contribution, dealing with the present tax burden and comparing municipal improvements in the past 15 years, has been received by The Star from Bert J. Shelton, deputy county treasurer. Mr. Shelton, in part, writes:

With a few notable exceptions most of our cities throughout the country have reason to be proud of the economy they have exercised in recent years despite distorted and ill-advised reports to the contrary. Some of these reports failed to take cognizance of two significant facts. One is that modern civilization demands and needs civic improvements as neverbefore. The other is that the purchasing power of the dollar is considerably less and the average wage considerably more than it was before the World War.

Thus, when an individual or an organization points out with horror that a municipality or a state is spending for improvements nearly twice as much as in 1913, no mention is made of the facts that the purchasing power of the dollar has been nearly cut in two or that wages have virtually doubled since the so-called "normal pre-war period."

Without sifting all of the facts it is very apparent to anyone with a modicum of reasoning and observation powers that, with all of our large expenditures for roads, streets sewage disposal plants and various structures, some devoted to utility and others to art, has come better living and, undeniably, general increased prosperity.

The truth is that municipal expenditures only apparently have shown a considerable increase since 1913. Where they have actually increased investigation will show that the increase has been not only justified but inevitable to meet the needs of citizens. The population of cities has greatly increased in the last 30 years.

Present Needs

More than 40,000,000 people are now residents of cities. In fact, those cities which have populations of 30,000 or more house nearly one-third of the population of the United States. This increase has in itself created the need for many more functions of city government and the intensification of existing functions.

Our health officers must guard against the spread of disease in congested sections. Parks and museums must be provided for a vast number of people who can no longer find recreation in the country within an hour's ride. Adequate transportation and street lighting systems are necessary to carry on the city's business. The changes in the life of the individual have been as great.

Trend of Expenditures

What has been the trend of municipal expenditures during recent years? Are they mounting inordinately? Are they barely keeping pace with the new demand, or, are they nearly stationary with the old figures of 10 and 20 years ago? A city government is organized to render, under frequently changing administrations, a multiplicity of related and unrelated services for which no ledger shows a financial profit.

It is not to be expected that all the departments of the city government will operate as efficiently as an automobile factory. Honesty and reasonable efficiency we have a right to expect from public service. We know also that not every large private industry operates at the maximum efficiency. At least the percentage of failures would lead us to think so.

The U. S. Bureau of the Census receives detailed reports annually from all cities of over 30,000 population. The numbe rof such cities is, of course, increasing but comparative statistics have been kept for 146 of them over a considerable number of years. The increase in the total expenditures will not be satisfactorily explained unless we consider the corresponding increase in the population of these cities. Therefore, the report lists also the average expenditure each year for each citizen.

The amount spent per capita in 1913 was $32.46. In 1923 this had risen to $68.09 per capita, apparently an increase of 112 per cent. To understand fully this increase, however, we must study the changes that occurred during the years between 1913 and 1925. In 1914 began a world war that lasted five years. Financial standards all over the world were upset. The money of all European countries depreciated greatly and the currency of several of these countries is still worth much less than the pre-war standard. In the United States, our own dollar depreciated, until in 1920, it was worth less than half as much as in 1913.

The year 1913 is most frequently taken in government reports as representing the normal pre-war annual period. While the purchasing power of the dollar decreased, our cities had to function as usual even though in 1920 they would have had to spend twice as much to carry on the same amount of work and render the same service as in 1913; but the very real attempt to economize was noticeable, for the per capita expenditures in 1920 reported from these 146 cities was only $35.58. Improvements and even ordinary services were curtailed. Also during 1917, 1918 and 1919, public and private improvements were postponed in order to push the manufacture of ammunition and military supplies. In these years, too, the cities were spending very nearly the same amount per capital as in 1913 but actually purchasing in goods and service, very much less.

Per Capita Expenditures

To make a fair comparison we should consider the per capita expenditure reported for the population of 146 cities since 1913. But to make a fair comparison of the work actually carried on by the cities the per capita expenditures for each year should be shown on the basis of the normal dollar as we knew it in 1913. Municipal expenditures on basis of purchasing power of 1913 dollar. (1913—$32.50, 1914—$34.00, 1915—$35.00, 1916—$20.00, 1917—$22.00, 1918—$18.00, 1919—$17.00, 1920—$20.00, 1921—$22.50, 1922—$42.50, 1923—$30.00, 1924—$33.00, 1925—$45.00). This comparison shows very clearly the great drop in municipal activities during the war years and the increase after 1919 to catch up with the needed improvements. (Municipal expenditures as reported 1913—$32.50, 1914—$33.00, 1915—$35.00, 1916—$33.00, 1917—$33.00, 1918—$35.50, 1919—$36.00, 1920—$37.00, 1921—$37.50, 1922—$38.50, 1923—$60.00, 1924—$66.00, 1925—$72.50). Since 1919 private industry and family housing throughout the country also have had to spend large sums in order to make up for their own lack of progress during the war years. The average per capita expenditure from 1913 to 1925 for the 146 cities is shown as $32.60 compared with the 1913 dollar. The per capita expenditure for Marion City for 1926 was $25.76 as compared with $22.19 in 1913.

Now "Catching Up"

In other words we are only now catching up with the normal expenditure back in 1913. Or, to put it differently, we have spent virtually the same amount of money to operate our cities as if the war had not intervened and we had gone along steadily spending $32.68 a person each year to keep the cities functioning. There are now 217 cities of over 30,000 population but the 146 cities with continuous records contain the majority of city residents and their consolidated reports fairly show the trend of city finances.

Another measure of the cities' activities is the fluctuation of the net indebtedness. The per capita net indebtedness in these 146 cities rose from $69.28 in 1913 to $110.15 in 1925. Here again we must take into account the variation in the purchasing power of the dollar. Even if one mile of new water main will serve the same number of homes as in 1913 it will cost very much more to lay this one mile, just as it costs much more to rent a home today. The debt curve shows the same reduction during the war years and again an increase as cities tried to catch up with delayed improvements and financed them by bond issues. Value for value, however, the average per capita debt during these twelve years is only $02.50, $0.60 less than in 1913.

Interest on Bonds

Another comparison might show the decrease in interest rates in municipal bonds. While high grade public utilities must finance their improvements with bonds paying five to six per cent, cities are able to borrow money at four per cent or less. Conservative bankers hold that, so long as the indebtedness is kept within ten per cent of the total assessment, spreading the cost of public improvement over several years at a low rate of interest, is sound policy. Many states place the limit of debts which cities may contract at much less than ten per cent.

Occasional careless statements alleging that public expenditures should be cut to the bone, because taxes have arisen and bond issues increased should not blind us to an intelligent consideration of the facts. Our real aim should be efficient and economical expenditure of public funds.

A large expenditure is thoroughly justified if it brings sufficient return in increased safety, efficiency or comfort to the citizens. Most of these large expenditures really pay for themselves many times over in actual financial benefit to residents of a city. As expressed by Blaine F. Moore of the Finance Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, "Sane spending is intelligent economy."

Let us attempt to get full value for every dollar spent and not by the faults of the few cities where graft and inefficiency predominate against those thousands of other cities which are progressing steadily, conservatively and economically in step with our ever improving standards of health, safety, comfort and sane living.

The law creating a Municipal Court for Marion provides that the City Solicitor shall be Prosecuting Attorney of the Municipal Court. It also provides that the City Solicitor may designate such number of Assistant Prosecutors as the Council of the City of Marion may authorize. At the present time in Marion there is a City Solicitor and a Police Court Prosecutor. I have made a careful study of the requirements and the duties of these two positions. I believe I can properly handle all of the work of both of these offices and thereby save the City of Marion the cost of a Police Court Prosecutor. I am willing to do this even though it may require all of my time to properly look after the duties devolving upon both the Solicitor and Police Court Prosecutor.

CHIROPRACTIC FACTS

SAVE THE KIDDIES

PROTECT THEM FROM A MONOPOLY OF HEALTH METHODS

Vote "YES"

On the Chiropractic Bill November 8

THE ISSUE—The proposed initiated Chiropractic Bill to be voted on at the election on Nov. 8 will be the means of protecting the public health!

DANGER — It is dangerous to the public welfare to place in the hands of one group of admittedly prejudiced politico-medical practitioners full authority over the people's health.

CHIROPRACTIC EDUCATION—The initiated Chiropractic Bill requires a high school education and three years in a Chiropractic College before admission to examination. Three years of six calendar months each with Saturdays and holidays not excepted, give the Chiropractic student as many hours in Anatomy, Symptomatology and Diagnosis, Physiology, Bacteriology, Chemistry, Pathology, Hygiene and Sanitation as medical colleges give, because 48 per cent of the medical courses are devoted to study of Drugs and Surgery.

Confinement Cases

Chiropractors do not now and will not under the new law take such cases.

Diagnosis:

The Chiropractor has the added advantage of Spinal Analysis which eliminates the guess-work.
Under the present law, we are licensed as "Limited Practitioners," the State Medical Board "limiting" the diseases that we are supposed not to accept as patients. Among them are Whooping Cough, Measles, Typhoid Fever, etc., all of which respond readily to adjustments. Neither are we allowed to sign Death Certificates, which compels us to refuse cases that in all probability could at least be relieved of much suffering and in many instances restored to health. The present law is very unsatisfactory to the Licensed Chiropractor, and 98 per cent of them are supporting the present bill, which we trust you will help us to make a law.

The people of Ohio are entitled to unrestricted right to have the doctor of their choice. The right of the sick to get well must not be challenged. Are you going to maintain and protect your Constitutional rights?
If you are, go to the polls on Tuesday, November the eighth, and

Industrial Stocks Gain In Dull Trading Session

GOOD REPORTS IN MOTOR FIELD

Mercantile and Drug Company Mergers Stimulate Buying of Shares

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks, irregular; industrial stocks, irregular; domestic bonds, irregular; foreign bonds, firm; call money 3 1-2 per cent.; grain, irregular; copper, firm; oil, irregular; cotton, fairly steady; rubber, steady; sugar, steady; pig iron, steady; foreign exchange, irregular.

New York, Nov. 7—Industrial stocks moved forward to a slightly higher level of prices in dull and irregular trading today. Mergers and rumors of mergers in prominent mercantile and drug manufacturing companies stimulated buying demand for the stocks of the companies concerned, but last week's brisk advances in United Drug, Lambert, American Druggist and others had already taken the edge off the current move in these stocks.

Stock market activities were largely controlled by the professionals.

Bullish pools in the specialty stocks like Texas Gulf Sulphur, International Combustion, Standard Milling, etc., sent their favorites to higher price levels in a "drive against the shorts;" tobacco stocks and coppers continued the belated movement which started near the end of last week, and a few of the so-called investment rails spurted a point or two on investment buying of modest volume.

The low-priced motor stocks received the benefit of more favorable reports from the selling end of the industry. General Motors and Chrysler are expected to make important statements about their dividend declarations this week and the Nash, Moon, Dodge and other manufacturers have reported an encouraging public reception of their latest models placed on the market.

QUILT AND COVERLET EXHIBITION CLOSES

Display Declared by Judges To Be Finest They Had Seen

Marion's first quilt and coverlet show, containing exhibits declared by judges brought to this city from Columbus and Cleveland, to be among the finest they had ever been called on to judge, came to a close Saturday night with prizes being awarded to the winners in the various classes.

A list of the winners, it was announced today by Dr. F. A. Stengel who was instrumental in staging the show, would be completed late today. The judges who were brought to this city by the Kiwanis club, under whose auspices the show was held, and who passed on the exhibits Saturday night were P. C. Harris and Mrs. Laura Hunter of Columbus and Mrs. Clara Sloan, of Cleveland.

The exhibition was fostered by the Marion Kiwanis Club and the proceeds are to be used to help finance the fresh air camp next summer.

WILL BURY G. GRAY IN ARLINGTON CEMETERY

Sparta, Tenn., Nov. 7—The body of Capt. Hawthorne C. Gray, army air service officer, who died in the attempt to establish a new altitude record for balloons, will arrive in Washington Wednesday for burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

The body left here today accompanied by Lieut. Couch of Scott Field, who also is carrying with him the barograph and other instruments in the balloon. Experts will examine these to ascertain if Captain Gray established a new record.

Chicago, Nov. 7 — Argentine news was the occasion for considerable display of strength in wheat the end of last week, with prices scoring a big advance, and disclosing oversold pit conditions which made it possible to advance the market.

There was nothing sensational in the news from South America, but there was a scarcity of wheat offerings in the pit, and shorts were caught off their guard. Commission houses' buying has been fair on the lips and local bulls have been quick to take advantage of oversold spots.

The particular news which carried prices up nearly four cents on Saturday was a private cable saying that rust infection was practically in northern Argentina. It was not claimed there had been any damage, and other cables were extremely optimistic in regard to the crop outlook. However, the pit conditions were such as to make prices advance easily. The market was carried higher than on the previous Saturday when there was a front scare from Argentina which proved baseless.

Marketing Heavy

The Canadian marketings are now nearly as large as the movement of a year ago, the record breaking receipts during October overcoming the handicap of the late start to a great extent. The quality of the wheat is showing improvement. Grading at Winnipeg is now generally good.

The export business in corn so far has not amounted to much and Argentine is still shipping corn both to this country and to Canada as well as keeping the European markets well supplied. Argentine shipments for the week were 6,916,000 bushels.

Oats have been relatively firm making gains of ⅝ to ¾c for the week. Cash oats continue strong relatively with little pressure from the country.

The speculative trade has been narrow with but little pressure and also little aggressive buying.

Rye has held firm most of the time but did not follow the latest advance in wheat. The statistical position of rye continues strong and premiums are not sufficient to cause much demoralization, while Duluth continued to ship freely.

Ford's Wealth, in Gold, Would Weigh 2,000 Tons; America's Supply is 9,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Henry Ford's wealth, if converted into gold, would weigh 2,000 tons and take as many of his own trucks to haul it around—assuming that the flivver king is worth a billion dollars.

Figures obtained from Frank White, treasurer of the United States, today showed that America's money gold supply, on the scales, would equal 9,000 tons. World gold stocks are almost double that weight.

There is more gold in the New York assay office than any other one spot in the world—an average of $2,000,000,000, or about 4,000 tons, according to White.

Has Three-Fourths

Out of the country's total gold coin and bullion of $4,581,000,000, the treasury is in possession of $3,630,000,000. For every dollar of paper money there must be an equal amount of gold or silver in the treasury vaults, but at present, owing to the great inward movement of gold to United States since the war, the par is considerably higher.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank—probably the most solidly backed financial institution in the world—has a gold reserve of $1,021,513,000, far exceeding that of most nations. Only a nominal amount of actual gold, however, is maintained at the bank, its reserve being made up to a considerable extent of gold certificates, the physical backing being in the treasury.

Four Billion Circulation

High American exchange rates, the favorable balance of merchandising trade, income on foreign investments and proceeds on war loans and extensive counter movement results from loans abroad, immigrant and tourist expenditures and America's vast buying overseas.

Total money circulation as the annual holiday orgy of spending starts is approximately $4,850,000,000. That represents about one-twenty-second of the national income. In other words every dollar outside the treasury is "turned over" about twenty-two times every year.

NO MORE PARALYSIS CASES REPORTED

Officials Feel That Further Spread of Disease Here Unlikely

With no additional cases of infantile paralysis reported to the city health department at noon today, it is the belief of officials that there will be no further spread of the disease.

The condition of Buddy Latour, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Latour, 407 Pearl-st, whose illness was the latest to be reported, is said to be much improved. Having recovered from his illness the boy is suffering from only a slight limp in the right leg. It is the belief of the attending physician that this will disappear in time.

Mrs. Luella Green, Summit-st, whose illness was suspected as being infantile paralysis, is also reported to have practically recovered with no evidence of paralysis.

NEW PUMPER PLACED AT W. CENTER-ST STATION

The new Seagraves 1,000 gallon pumper, the new addition to the equipment of the fire department and which arrived in this city last Tuesday, was formerly installed in its permanent location at the No. 2 fire station on W. Center-st this morning.

The machine which has been at the central station since its arrival was given a number of tests in the presence of city officials last week and was pronounced as satisfactory in every respect. The pumper which has been in service at the No. 2 station was taken to central station today where it will be overhauled and will be used as an emergency pumper.

People who don't tell their troubles are those who can't find anybody to listen.

Committees To Make Final Arrangements To Entertain Women at Special Meet

Plans for entertaining the women of the Ohio Council of Republican Women who will come to Marion in the pilgrimage of the Harding Tomb, next Friday, will be completed at a meeting of chairman and members of their committees at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the courthouse, it was announced today by Mrs. Frank A. Prominent speakers of national and state-wide interest will be on the program for the banquet to be held Friday night at the Neil House, Columbus, which a large number of women from Marion County will attend. SHERIFF DEAL SELLS THREE PROPERTIES

Farm of 506 Acres in Big Island Township Brings $21,500

Three properties, two in the city of Marion and the other a farm of 506 acres in Big Island Township, were sold by Sheriff James A. Deal, Saturday afternoon, in connection with mortgage foreclosure proceedings brought in the court of common pleas. The three properties brought a total of $28,100.

The farm, located southeast of Agosta and one of the largest sold under foreclosure here in recent years, went to Wilber M. Carter and Harris K. Hoblet of Bloomington, Ill., on their bid of $21,500. The property had been appraised at $20,600. It was sold as the result of a foreclosure suit brought by Englebert B. Kuhn against Mary Spears and others. First mortgage is held by the First Trust & Savings Bank of Blomoington, Ill.

A property at 623 Wilson-av, consisting of house and lot and vacant lot, was brought by Miller E. Sweney, his bid being $4,800. The appraisement was $4,500. The sale was held in connection with the foreclosure suit of the Home Building, Savings & Loan Co. against Stanley Emery and others.

A residence property at 380 Lee-st, sold as the result of suit filed by the Home Building, Savings & Loan Co. against Clement C. Shuster, was bid in by the plaintiff company at $1,800, two-thirds of the appraisement.
